EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE wail of the infant is heard above the roar of the Cleveland cannon.

GROVER CLEVELAND says that the tariff and personal morality are "irrelevant issues." That's worse than Hancock's remark about the tariff being a "local issue."

MISS ADDIE E. KURTZ is deputy sheriff of Franklin county and last week she took two burly prisoners from Chambersburg to the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia.

MARIA HALPIN'S brother-in-law comes to the centre with a postscript anent the Buffalo scandal. He says the truth has not half been told. Yet Grover says, "Tell the truth."

PERSONAL purity and the tariff are "irrelevant issues," are they, Mr. Cleveland? It seems to us that about the most irrelevant thing in this campaign is Mr. Cleveland himself.

A CAMPAIGN cartoon represents Cleveland with a hangman's noose in his hand. The sarcasm would have been deeper if the noose had been around his neck. It is that very noose that will help strangle him on election day.

ROBERT H. COLEMAN, the wealthiest iron producer in the State and the heir of the Cornwall estate at Lebanon, was quietly married in Grace Episcopal church, Baltimore, on Wednesday, to Miss Edith Johnson, of that city.

OVERHEARD soliloquy of the Hon. Grover Cleveland: "Shades of Maria! that man Logan can make eighty speeches in a week without hurting himself, and I can't even write a letter about irrelevant issues without putting my foot in it."

THERE are important Mulligan letters as yet unpublished, say the Democratic organs. Well, for the country's sake, bring them to the light. The last batch did Mr. Blaine a powerful sight of good, and the dose can't be repeated too often.

CLEVELAND is reported to have said "Tell the truth," but nevertheless Maria Halpin's brother-in-law, Simeon Talbott, says that Cleveland promised to pay him any amount he might desire if he (Talbott) would make a statement exonerating Cleveland.

THE Democrats objected to Grant because he was a soldier and not a statesman and now they object to Mr. Blaine because he is a statesman and not a soldier. As Mr. Cleveland is neither the one nor the other, they take to him, we suppose, not because of any mental ability, but because he wears a No. 18 collar.

Philadelphia Attractions—The New Public Buildings—The great Stores—Fairmount Park—The Churches—Theatres—Politics and Business.

The old historic places and buildings that for nearly a century were the special points of interest for our citizens, and to strangers visiting Philadelphia, are gradually losing their attraction, and find but few of the rising generation to do them reverence. "Let the dead past bury its dead," is the motto and philosophy of the restless and ambitious present. The sober and solid grey of old Quakerdelphia is almost undistinguishable behind the glamour of modern life.

Liberty's birth place, the Old State House, looks like neglected age standing beside courted youth when viewed in comparison with the new Public Buildings. Yet the one is made beautiful and sacred by the halo of patriotism, while the other wears the attractive grandeur of architectural perfection.

That the new Public Buildings will be, when completed, the largest and most elegant structure on the American continent, is admitted, we think, by those best qualified to judge in these matters. Twelve years have already been devoted to this work, and half as many more years will probably pass before the Public Buildings will reach completion.

A few figures as to size will give the reader a more accurate conception of the vastness of this structure. The building measures in length from north to south 486 feet six inches; from east to west 470 feet; and covers an area of 4½ acres. The height of the main tower is 537 feet 4 inches; the centre of the clock face is 361 feet above the pavement. The total amount of floor room is 14½ acres, divided into 520 rooms.

From every point of view this building presents a most imposing and beautiful appearance. It is not the dimensions alone that attract attention and admiration; but it is the exquisite combination of material, ornaments, sculpture and statuary in harmonious proportions. All the work evinces the very perfection of mechanical and artistic skill. Nearly all the varieties of marble in this country, and taken from the quarries of the different states, are found in the columns and ornamentation of the interior, and an idea may be had of the quantity used for the exterior from the fact that it has cost $5,300,000. The bricks of all kinds already used in the construction of this building amount to the enormus number of 61,333,108; and these are not on the outside. The whole cost of this grand work so far is $9,761,125,12.

When the main tower shall be completed it will be a sort of centrepiece of attraction for this great, a-spire-ing city; and will be the highest steeple in the world—that of the Cathedral at Cologne being 510 feet, the famous Strasburg Cathedral 468, and St. Peters, Rome, but 448 feet.

The location of the Public Buildings is most admirable, almost geographically centra, and standing directly across two of the widest avenues of the city, Market and Broad streets. In every respect this great work marks a radical departure from the methods and plainness that have heretofore characterized the construction of public buildings in Philadelphia. The wisdom of such expenditure for such display is a question we will not discuss at the present time.

STORES AND DWELLINGS.

In other respects Philadelphia is outgrowing the simplicity of former days. Our stores are really palaces of trade. We have a number of dry goods houses on Chestnut, Market and Eighth streets that for outward appearance, in size, style and architecture, and for interior arrangement and elegance, will compare favorably with the grandest in New York and Boston; while hundreds of dwellings adorn our streets graced with all the rich and lavish beauty of modern art and taste.

THE CHURCHES.

Brooklyn is not the only "City of Churches" in this country. The citizens of Philadelphia are generally a "church-going" people, and they take pride in having beautiful and commodious edifices of worship. It is a big stride in ornament and architecture from the plain old church where Washington worshiped, on Second street, to the grand temples that may now be seen on Broad street, and especially in West Philadelphia. Still, the old Cathedral at Race street and Logan Square, stands unrivalled in its solid and solemn splendor, and in the awe inspiring influence of its interior beauty and vastness.

OUR THEATRES.

That the same people should also be liberal supporters of the dramatic art may appear strange, but it is nevertheless the case in all large cities. The theatres here have opened their fall season under unusual unspices of success. Mr. Charles H. Day, who was for many years the principal managing genius of Forepaugh's great show, has now the management of the new Cnestnut Street Dime Museum, and is drawing crowds by the wonderful curiosities exhibited. The little being Krao is indeed a marvel, and excites the attention of scientists—a female child, seven years old, covered with hair, low hairy forehead, flattened nose, found in Loas by the great traveler, Carl Bock, and is very appropriately styled Darwin's "Missing Link." This new Dime Museum occupies the entire upper portion of the old Masonic Temple on Chestnut street, which has been admirably reconstructed for the purpose.

At Haverly's Theatre McCaulls' Opera Comique Company is delighting large and fashionable audiences in the comic opera Falka. Strauss' Comic Opera, "A Night in Venice," has been performed at the Walnut Street Theatre all the week, illustrated with magnificent scenery. Next week Edward Sothern, the son of one of the greatest comedians ever on the American stage, is to appear at the Arch Street Opera House, in "Crushed," a character made by his father almost as popular as his famous "Lord Dundreary;" and "May Blossom," "Blue Beard," Janauschek and Sitting Bull are to be the attractions at other theatres next week.

POLITICS.

Notwithstanding the number of Presidential candidates in the field, we have but two big "booms" in this city. The Democrats are doing all they can and the Republicans are doing more. General Logan is to speak here on the 8th inst., and a grand turnout is already assured. We have too many industrial interests here for Philadelphians not to know to which party they are to look for the best encouragement and protection. Workingmen are not slow to note the "signs of the times." They will vote for the party which affords the best assurance of employment and fair wages. "Blaine and Logan" is the most stirring political watch-cry heard in this city during the present exciting canvass; and the result in November will show that Philadelphia has not lost its prestige as a Republican stronghold.

BUSINESS.

The business outlook, too, is improving. There have been comparatively but few failures in Philadelphia. Our business firms are more cautious and conservative than the New York dealers. The retail trade is a good barometer of the general condition of the public, and judging from the daily crowds of purchasers to be seen in the leading stores the pressure of hard times cannot be seriously felt in Philadelphia.

HIRAM TORREY.

THUS far James G. Blaine has been able to throw off every charge which has been produced against him.

Prohibition and Greenbacks.

Bellefonte has recently been honored (?) with the presence at different times of two separate conventions—the Prohibition county convention and the Greenback State convention.

Each of them is useless and superfluous at this special time.

So far as the advocacy by the former of St. John and Daniels is concerned each vote given to them and withheld from Blaine and Logan will be a vote against Prohibition, and will be destructive of the objects intended to be advanced. It is true, we have heard some of them present the argument that by doing this and by giving Democracy and free whiskey a brief lease of power, everybody will become so thoroughly nauseated and disgusted as to be glad to vote for Prohibition. But we distrust this argument which advocates doing wrong that good may result, and venture the prediction that if Democracy ever comes into possession of the National Capital she will put forth every evil effort in her power to maintain control.

So far as the Greenback convention is concerned, it was an absolute injury to that party. The time was spent in quarreling and factional disputes, and delegates departed more dissatisfied than when they came. The financial question is not the most important now before the people, and the principles of the Greenback party on Protection as enunciated in its platform are in exact accord with those of the Republican party and candidates. But the managers of the party show that they are ready at any time to sell out their party to the highest bidder. As the Republican party is operated on principles and not money and as no underhand tactics are used in advancing her influence, it is probable that Democracy will try to eat the sugar plum. Thus if the Republicans who have temporarily associated themselves with the Greenbackers follow that party in its devious ways this campaign they will probably be betrayed into voting for that free-trade libertine, Cleveland, and then what will all their fine profession amount to?

Moral—Vote for Blaine and Logan.

TWENTY-TWO thousand men are building ships in the United States. Twenty-two millions of dollars are the shipbuilders' capital. Forty million dollars a year is the product. And in the transportation trade—for our railway trains are also our ships—we employ nearly 2,000,000 people, or half as many as in all our manufactures. The sailor who abandons a pinnace for Jamaica to run a locomotive to California is hardly a dead navigator. He has merely become a prairie schooner. The coastwide commerce of the United States is our monopoly under protection, and it is prospectively if not absolutely equal as a possession to the whole continent of Europe, if not to the remaining world. The French, Germans and British are picking up ports wherever they can find them as commercial nuclei. Our fathers, James Madison and men like him, wisely reserved the coasts of the United States for our ships and citizens. Our maritime lines encircle the whole country and are among the largest maritime corporations on the globe: On the western lakes and rivers and the canals $12,000,000 worth of vessels are built annually. Iron shipbuilding, which at the close of the war hardly existed, employs 590 hands, requires 60,000,000 pounds of iron, and produces nearly $7,000,000 of product. If this is a failure in eighteen years to repeat it will be dismal—to some prophets.

WHEN Candidate Cleveland wrote a note declining to go to Chicago, he assigned as one reason because of the necessity of receiving the gentlemen who call on him in Albany. That's rather aristocratic logic. He prefers rather to remain in the congenial company of a half dozen prominent members of the party than to mingle with the half million inhabitants of the great metropolis of the West.

MR. BLAINE'S nomination has been productive of the most extraordinary results on our people ever known in a Presidential election since Lincoln's time. It has detached from the old column of ignorance tens of thousands of intelligent foreigners who perceive that this contest is a fight for our American system which has made the whole country rich and put it out of the power of any nation in Europe to cram its goods and doctrines into the republic. What would be thought in England, for example, of the people, if they, when at the summit of a prosperity brought about by a bold and stable line of policy, were to turn out of power the statesmen who had accomplished it? Yet what are foreigners to think of us when they have seen us grow to nearly sixty millions of people, doubling our population during the sway of the Republican party, if we from mere want of grit and character tire of success and again become a British province? If free trade is the correct doctrine, why has every colony of England thrown it overboard? Why is Canada under a protective system? Why is Australia operating under the protective tariffs drawn from the American model? Because no great race of men are willing to have the tone of their mechanism, their arts, and their whole industria tone set by a people 3,000 miles distant. We have a continent, the greatest market on the globe. We want it for our own mechanics, and when the manufactures are general all over the country the spirit of exportation will again leap to the mast-head in the flag and we shall draw into this continent millions of the British people whose forerunners here in various of our crafts making iron, hosiery, woolens, never think to subscribe to the tenets of the land they came from.

"TELL the truth." That's what Grover Cleveland said. But his Democratic managers don't want the truth told. Simeon Talbott, Maria Halpin's brother-in-law, says in regard to that little trouble which is one of the many in which Cleveland figured: "After Mrs. Halpin's trouble we learned that Cleveland was a notorious libertine. The half has not been told about him. I don't tell this for publication; it is not necessary in order to defeat him. New York will give an overwhelming majority against him. I have here a letter from my wife stating that Mrs. Halpin had refused for the sum of $10,000 to make a statement for the Democrats. She says she would rather tell the truth for the Republican cause than take any sum from the Democrats."

EVEN now, while Blaine is making his triumphal tour through the country and giving hourly proof of his matchless popularity with the American people, Logan divides the attention of the people. The Republican convention could hardly have supplemented its nomination of chief with a more fitting second. Blaine and Logan move and pull well together. Both represent the highest vitality of the Republican cause. Both are active, strong, persistent, enduring. In the language of the road, they are "a whole team," with every winning quality.

THE British employ nearly 1,100,000 hands in their textile factories, of whom about 140,000 are under thirteen years old. Textile means woven and applies to almost everything manufactured except the metals. The United States employs nearly 3,000,000 people in her workshops, of whom 90,000 are in woolen goods, 40,000 in silk goods, 180,000 in cotton goods, 22,000 in carpets. How absurb the suicide which would send these industries to ruin because some unbalanced fellow has read a book to show that free trade is right!

VOTE for every man on the Republican county ticket. All are worthy, while Rhone, Walker, Woodward, Brett and others whom we might name on the Democratic ticket are very objectionable to voters of all parties.

THERE are no elopements in Venice. No coachmen are employed in the city of canals.

HERE is a case of newspaper enterprise. The Boston Star charges that three newspaper men, reporting for the New York Herald, World and Times, "formed a combination among themselves to draw upon their imaginations" for news in regard to the Morosini affair, and for a number of days filled the columns of their several papers with interviews that did not take place. This may be smart, but to the average citizens it looks like an outrage for which some one ought to be punished.

SENATOR CAMERON has purchased a ticket for Cleveland, O. Perhaps some people think he is merely going there to call on his mother-in-law. Perhaps.

MOTHER EARTH.

BY HIRAM TORREY.

In the golden days of Summer,
When the bloom is on the peach,
And the fruitage of the orchards
All their loving lessons teach:

When in garden and in meadow,
And in mossy wildwood dell
All the bright and dimpling blossoms
Nature's sweetest story tell:

When the sun is kissing ripeness
Into fields of plumaged grain,
And the thirsty plants are drinking
Earth's baptismal dews and rain:

When the tints of rainbow beauty
Are embossing bluest skies,
And on seas of sunset splendor
Float the isles of paradise:

Then we know the Earth, our mother,
As with warm, caressing love,
Is to man these gifts bestowing
From the Father-hand above.

Poetry.

THE GOLDEN ROD.

O gaily raise your radiant heads,
And wave your gold-fringed banners bright,
While o'er the sun-browned hillside spreads
Your charm that sweetly woos the sight!
The fairest ye of all the throng,
Mild herald of autumnal days;
In forests dim your light prolong,
O'er fields shine through the golden haze.

Ye tell us that the trees shall stand
All leafless 'gainst the silent sky,
And birds shall in some southern land
Renew the songs they here let die.
How oft a rest the toiler finds
By road-sides where your beauty blooms,
And feels his brow refreshed by winds
That gently sway your glowing plumes.

Sometimes upon the mountains wild
Your watch and ward ye fondly keep,
O'er nature's wandering life that smiled
Ere storm winds burst with withering sweep.
How oft the towering pine goes down
Beneath the tempest's rushing gale
That passes harmless o'er your crown,
Still bright with yellow blossoms frail.

The splendors of the sun's gay hue,
Gathered from summer's smiling skies,
Ye throw upon the world anew
When autumn's darkening clouds arise.
The brave and generous heart that sheds,
Where'er in time and earth it dwell,
Beauty and blessing on the heads
Of those who feel its magic spell.

FLIES.

Two little flies in my chamber I see,—
I have killed one, and now there are three.

Three little flies crawling over my door,—
I have killed two, and now there are four.

Four little flies on the wall still alive,—
I have killed three, and now there are five.

Five little flies, but their fate soon I'll fix,—
I have killed four and now there are six.

Six little flies to torment me have striven,—
I have killed five, and now there are seven.

Seven little flies, buzzing early and late,—
I have killed six, and now there are eight.

Eight little flies all impatient to dine,—
I have killed seven, and now there are nine.

Nine little flies within reach of my pen,—
I have killed eight, and now there are ten.

O good Beelzebub, "Lord of the Fly,"
Call home thy children who thus multiply!

Royal Domitian, I summon thy aid;
Teach me thy skill in the fly-killing trade.

Would, like thy courtiers, my friends would reply,
"No one is with him, not even a fly."*

IN THE FALL.

Among the stubborn corn
The blithe quail pipes a morn,
The merry partridge drums in hidden places,
And glittering insects gleam
Above the reedy stream
Where busy spiders spin their flimsy laces.

The cricket chirps all day,
"O, fairest summer, stay!"
The squirrel eyes askance the chestnut browning;
The wild fowl fly afar
Above the foaming bar,
And hasten southward ere the skies are frowning.

Our Story Teller.

Did not Do It.

"Watch the levee, Sam, while I'm away. There are folks around mean enough to cut the levees and let the water on the crops just from pure wickedness. They don't like to see anybody doing better than themselves. Be sure and watch the point next Eldred's. We can't be too careful when the Mississippi is on the rampage, as it is now, and for this reason I am sorry to be obliged to go away to-night, but I must see Judge Dickson. I cannot go to Brentwood and get back before morning. Now do you understand fully what is necessary for you to do? You must walk the levee all night. Can you do it?"

"Why, of course, father," said Sam Dorsey, a bright-looking, delicate boy about seventeen years old. "I am not a sleepy-head, and it won't be hard to keep my eyes open. No one will trouble anything on this front while I am around. If they attempt it, I shall do my best to prevent them." And delicate as he was, he looked as if he meant it.

Mr. Dorsey looked troubled at this speech. "Look here, Sam," he said. "I don't mean that you are to get into trouble with any person who may intend to do harm. If you see anything suspicious, or any one prowling around, all I want you to do is to run to Black's and the white men there have promised to come over here if they are needed."

Mr. Dorsey was not the owner of one of those princely estates on the Mississippi which extend for miles down the front of the river. He was a hardworking man, who, by thrift and industry, had laid up money enough to purchase eighty acres of land. The promise of a crop this spring was very fine, and it would be a far greater misfortune for him to lose it than it would be for his wealthier neighbor, Col. Eldred, who counted his acres by thousands, to lose his harvest. In fact, a crevasse on Mr. Dorsey's place would be a total ruin. He walked into his house with an anxious and worried look.

"Milly," he said to his wife, "I've left the levee in Sam's care to-night. Give him something warm to eat; make him a cup of coffee, for he's got to stay on the levee till morning."

"What are you afraid of, John?" asked his wife, looking keenly at him. "Something troubles you. I am sure the river must rise a couple of feet before the water will overflow, and it certainly will not rise as much as that to-night. Besides, I've heard you say this levee was the strongest in the parish."

"I suppose I'd better tell you," her husband answered, "or you will fancy all sorts of horrors. You know Black Webster, don't you, the engineer at Eldred's?"

"Of course I know him. Why it was his little son Phil that Sam was so kind to, when the child fell and injured his spine. Every little luxury or plaything that Sam got he used to take it to that little negro, and I believe he taught him to spell."

"Well, that has nothing to do with this man. I have good reasons for believing he cut the levee at Linwood's, and I told him so. Linwood had shot a horse of Webster's by accident, and that was the way he took revenge for the loss of his animal. Col. Eldred won't listen to anything against him. You see he is useful, and Eldred is a thoroughly selfish man. I've been told that Webster has said he would be revenged on me, because I accused him of cutting the levee, and this very evening I saw him walking down my front and examining it. He's a bad fellow, and will not hesitate to do me harm if the wish is in his heart."

"But if he cuts your levee, won't Eldred suffer?" Mrs. Dorsey asked.

"No. His is several feet higher than this place, and he has a levee between us besides. I'm very uneasy and I hate to go away to-night."

Mrs. Dorsey was not a timid woman, but she was frightened at the danger which menaced them. She knew that the business which called her husband away could not be postponed, but the idea of exposing Sam to danger was more than she could bear.

"But, John," she cried, "what do you mean by sending Sam to guard the levee to-night? If Webster is the wretch you think he is, he would as lief murder him as not, if he comes in his way."

"Oh, I cannot believe there is any possibility that he would dare to do that. I've told Sam where to go if he sees any prowlers about."

"But, John, Sam may not see him. And if Webster succeeds in cutting the levee, Sam would be drowned before he could get here."

"Oh well, Milly, it isn't worth while to make too serious a matter of this. We'll hope for the best. It's just a clear case of necessity, for I cannot get one of my neighbors to watch here to-night. They all have their own fronts to guard, but they promise to come here in case of accident. Come, wife, I've always thought you a brave little woman before."

Mrs. Dorsey was a western woman, with a deal of western pluck, but it seemed to desert her in this emergency.

"Have you told Sam whom you were afraid of?" she asked.

"I did not mention any name. I thought it might make him nervous to know I had such an enemy. I only gave him a general warning, for no man has any business to be prowling about the levees at night."

"Men have no consideration," Mrs. Dorsey muttered to herself, as she watched her husband ride away. "They are not afraid themselves, and they have no sympathy for other people's fears."

"But her conscience smote her when she remembered the distressed look in her husband's eyes when he took leave of her. He was a most devoted husband and father, and she felt that nothing but stern necessity had forced him to expose his boy to possible danger.

When Sam came in to supper, she said to him, "I am going to watch with you, Sam, to-night, on the levee. We can take turns. You can watch till midnight, and I will watch till daylight. I don't mind sitting up at all, for I'm so well and strong it won't hurt me a bit."

The boy looked at her with surprise, and then laughed outright.

"Why, mother, you must be crazy! Do you suppose I'd let you do such a thing! And you're awfully well and strong, ain't you, with a chill and fever every three days? No, I promised pa, and he depends on me. What do you think he'd say when he come back to-morrow if he found that I had let you take my place? No, no, I cannot consent to your doing it, mother. If I'm not as strong as most boys, it won't kill me to promenade up and down the levee for one night."

She was on the point of telling him, but she remembered what her husband had said, and checked herself. "If you see any persons on the levee, Sam, you will remember to do what your father told you, and run to Black's? Don't stop to talk to them."

"Oh, I'll remember. If you will give me my supper now, I'll go on my watch at once."

During the meal Sam chatted gayly. He didn't believe anybody would be mean enough to cut the levees. Oh, it was impossible, and he thought his father must be mistaken. Mrs. Dorsey, in spite of herself, caught something of her son's bright hopefulness, and in some degree was comforted.

"I'm off now!" cried Sam, jumping up, "I'll run at once to Black's if I see any one fooling around, so don't you feel uneasy. I won't be lonely either, for I have lots of things to think about. I tell you what I'll do, too. I have my whistle in my pocket, and every time I get opposite the house I'll blow it so you will know I'm all right, and not asleep on my post. But do go to bed and don't sit up."

There was no sleep for Mrs. Dorsey that night. She sewed until her eyes ached, and then lay down on a lounge, listening for the whistle which came at almost regular intervals.

Meantime, Sam walked up and down, his eyes fixed intently on the shadows back and front of the levee. But about midnight, after the moon had risen, Sam was startled by seeing a dusky figure at the base of the levee rise suddenly from a stooping posture. It was so unexpected that the boy, with his eyes fixed on the figure, stood still a minute, but that time sufficed for him to recognize the man.

"Why, Webster, is that you?" he cried, with a laugh of relief. "I was just about to clip it to Black's, when I saw it was you. Pa was afraid his levee would be cut to-night, and told me to give the alarm if I saw any one skulking about. I tell you what, I am glad it turned out to be you. How is Phil?"

"Phil's well," he answered sullenly. "So you're the levee guard, is you? Your pa left a mighty puny somebody to watch his levee."

"Well, you see, I don't really think the levee needs a guard. Now, Webster, do you think that anybody would be mean enough to cut a levee and ruin people?"

"Yes, I does, and sarve 'em right, too," the man muttered.

"You don't mean that," Sam said, his voice full of pain. "I know you can't mean it, for you wouldn't do such a thing for the world. Phil used to tell me what a good daddy you were, and when I brought him things to eat he'd put up some for dad."

"You wor good to him," the man said, moodily, staring out over the water.

"I don't know about being good," Sam answered, "for I like him, and he likes me. He's to go on with his book when this levee scare is over. Do you really think the water will come over?"

"Looks like your pa's place might be drowned out. It's so low, and dere's a heap of crawfish holes in de levee."

Sam sighed deeply. "Well, if it does, my father says he'll have to go away, and it's too bad after he's worked so hard. And then I shall be obliged to give up going to school. That'll hurt me terribly, for I wanted to learn all I could. You see, my arm is so crippled with rheumatism I can't do hard work, and I have to make my living by my head if I can't do it with my hands. I'd hate to part with Phil, too, and he and I would be very sorry."

The man's eyes softened as the boy spoke. He was really fond of his own little son, and he knew Sam had been a kind friend to him. When he vindictively determined to revenge himself on Mr. Dorsey, he never thought of his being the father of the boy who had done so much good for his poor little Phil. He wavered for a moment in his dark project, and just then Sam said,—

"I've stopped here chatting to you longer than I ought, for pa told me to keep walking up and down all the time. My legs are getting awful tired; but, Webster, would you mind walking to the south end of the levee while I'm examining the north end? It will save me one tramp at least.

As Sam disappeared in his round, the man actually laughed in his surprise.

"Ef dis aint de beatenest ting I eber heard of, and ef dat boy aint more like one of de 'Postles dan livin folks! He can't tink harm ob ole Satan hisself. Leavin' me to watch his pa's levee, and nebber suspicionin' I wor ready to cut it? I clar to gracious it's downright funny. I aint got it in my heart to hurt dat little chap, and ef I hurts his pa, I hurts him, and ef I hurts him I hurts Phil. No, I can't do it, nohow. De madness is all gone now, sure. Hi! wot's dat?"

A little pool of water had gathered around his feet. He struck a match, lighted a lantern he carried, and saw a small stream of water oozing from a hole about the middle of the levee. In less than a hour that hole would be a crevasse. Without a moment's hesitation, Webster dashed off to the Eldred plantation and was soon back with twenty men.

They drove down piles, they shovelled dirt, and Webster himself worked as if his life depended upon saving his enemy's field. In two hours the leak was closed and the danger over.

"You've saved us, Webster," Sam said, his voice faltering. "What a noble fellow you are, and how you worked! I must leave pa to thank you; I can't do it as I would like."

"I don't want no thanks," the man said roughly. "I done it fur you! you hear me! And I done more dan you knows ob fur you dis night."

When Mr. Dorsey returned the next morning and heard the events of the night he exchanged a glance with his wife.

"The boy saved us, Milly," he said when they were alone. "There's no doubt in my mind that Webster was at that levee for the purpose of cutting it, but the goodness and innocent faith of our boy disarmed him. Love was stronger than hate this time, for which I am truly grateful."

"Do Unto Others," Etc.

From the Washington Republican.

An old colored man and an equally old colored woman walked down to the river near the long bridge, and to the astonishment of the fisherman who saw the performance walked in and began ducking each other. When both were thoroughly wet they offered a short prayer and walked ashore. To a gentleman who inquired the meaning of this strange proceeding the old man said:

"Ye see, we's Christians; leastways we believe in the Bible, but not in church, because dere' more sin inside de church dan out. But we reads de Bible and we conclude to baptize ourselves as subscribed by John."

A Boston girl never calls an iceberg as an "iceberg." She speaks of it as "a floating aggregation of tangible frigidity."

A Curious Customer.

Yesterday afternoon, shortly after the arrival of the train, a man entered an hotel in this city and asked the clerk, who stood busying himself with a patent blotter, the terms upon which he could engage board.

"Owing to the location of your room, sir. Big demand for our rooms. Feed well."

"I don't care so much about the eating part," replied the man. "I am forty odd years old, and have been eating about all my life its getting to be an old thing to me. Well, say, give me a respectable room—how much'll you charge?"

"Just yourself, sir?"

"Well, in a manner."

"Twenty-five dollars per month in case you are alone."

"You see it's this way:—My wife will be with me, but as times are pretty tight, I concluded to arrange it this way: I'll take breakfast, my wife will take dinner and we throw up—wet or dry for supper. By that means we can both get board for one price. I reckon I'm a little the best manager ever you seed."

"Fifty dollars for the two."

"I don't understand that sort of 'rithmatic. Both together we'd only eat the meal allowed for one person. It don't hurt a bed any more for two to sleep on it than for one. I've got a bed out in the country that was presented to my wife when we got married, and I'll be dinged if it ain't just about as good as new. It's one of these old-fashioned beds, with high yeller posts, with knobs on the top as big as pumpkins. I'll furnish the room with this bed and one chair. My wife can sit on the floor. I've lived in the country all my life, and having made a little money last year, I concluded to come to town and splurge a little. There's a woman down the country that has all the time been buckin' agin my wife and to get away from her we have concluded to board at a hotel."

"Fifty dollars per month is our lowest rate."

"How much by the year? I am going into this business right."

"Six hundred dollars."

"This is a wholesale business with me. How much for ten years."

"Six thousand dollars."

"That's getting down to it. How much for twenty years.

"Twelve thousand dollars."

All right. Mark me down for a snack right now and check it off for twenty years.

"See that card," said the clerk, pointing to the hotel maxim of persons without baggage are required to pay in advance.

"Oh, I've got the baggage," and the man lifted up the carpet bag.

"That won't do."

"Won't you take this as security?"

"No, get out of here."

"But I want to board here twenty years."

"Go on away.',

"I'll leave your snide hotel, sir, but first let me show you." He lifted up the carpet bag, opened it and displayed $40,000 in government bonds.

"You can stay, sir."

"No, I believe not. It takes too much money to put up at this hotel. Guess I'll go round and put up at a wagon yard."

An Extraordinary Bequest.

From the St. James Gazette.

Some members of a humble East Kent family have just had a fortune bequeathed to them under extraordinary circumstances. About the period of the Crimean war a laboring man named John Batt lived at Pluckley with his wife. A young workingman named Wilkinson came to reside there, and became very friendly with the Batts. He used to smoke his pipe in Batt's garden of an evening, help him in his cultivation, and took a particular fancy to their newest baby, "little John Batt," carrying him about and making him presents. Batt had a married sister, who some years before had gone out with the Mormons to America; and Wilkinson having determined to go to the United States, Batt gave him a letter of introduction to his sister. Tidings came that Wilkinson and Batt's sister and family were together, and it also transpired that the sister's husband had died.

The parties made money at Denver and Salt Lake City; but for very many years nothing was heard of them. At length, however, an advertisement appeared in American and English papers to the effect that "Squire Wilkinson" of a certain city in the Mormon State, had died and bequeathed his fortune, amounting to £13,000 in English money, to John Batt, of Pluckley, Kedt, if alive, if dead, to his son John Batt, and in default of the latter to his brothers and sisters. The elder Batt died many years ago, and his wife married a green grocer named John Hollands, living at Ashford. The son, John Batt, has lately been working as a bricklayer.

Plenty Times.

The day was young. Two men, each carrying a lot of tools, came slowly up to the corner of——street, and there paused. A Milton car had just passed the corner and was fully 20 feet away.

"There's our car," remarked one, calmly.

"No matter," replied his companion, "we'd have to hurry to ketch it. There'll be another in an hour," and they seated themselves in a doorway and lighted their pipes.

They were plumbers.

Hendricks' War Record.

ALWAYS A FIRE-IN-THE-REAR COPPERHEAD.

Washington Special.

Secretary McPherson, in response to numerous inquiries, has prepared the following letter as to the record of Thomas A. Hendricks during the rebellion:

"D. E. WELCH, ESQ., Boraboo, Wis.

"DEAR SIR: I have not prepared any pamphlet about Mr. Hendricks' record in the Senate, but during his term in Congress he voted against every tax bill to raise money to carry on the war. He was in the Senate when the tariff act of 1864 was passed, and he was one of the five Democrats who voted against it. He was in the Senate when the internal revenue act of 1864 was passed, and he was one of the three Democrats who voted against it. On the question of the draft act, which was passed in the winter of 1864, and which increased the power of the Government to fill up our weakened armies, he was one of ten Senators who voted against it on its original passage through the Senate, and one of sixteen who voted against it on its final passage. He also voted against the passage of the supplement to the enrollment act, which was passed in July, 1864. He did not vote in favor of any measure that looked to carrying on the war. On the question of employing colored troops he was always in opposition, and was one of the most determined of the opposition to the administration of Abraham Lincoln in all its measures for putting down the rebellion. He was opposed to the amendment of the Constitution abolishing slavery, and was one of the six Senators who voted in the negative. He was opposed to the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, and was one of the eleven Senators who voted in the opposition. If there was a suggestion or a movement calculated to embarrass Mr. Lincoln Mr. Hendricks was always in support of it. If there was an honest blow to be struck at the enemy Mr Hendricks was always unable to come up to the help of Mr. Lincoln. Sometimes he had one excuse and sometimes another. He always had an excuse. His record during the war was detestable and unpatriotic.

Very truly yours,

"EDWARD MCPHERSON, Sec'y."

The Dying Dolphin's Beauty.

From the Troy Times.

John T. Birge, formerly of this city and who accompanied a party of Trojans on a fishing excursion at Fire Island Beach, says in a letter to a friend in this city: "But to-night we still hold the banner as champion fishers of Fire Island, having caught to-day, about seven miles from the light-house, a dolphin weighing between 14 and 15 pounds, the first one that has been caught here by any boat in five years. We had it broiled for supper and sent around to the tables where we had acquaintances. It is a rather dry fish, by no means equal in flavor to a Spanish mackerel, but very good eating. Now, I am going to tell you how we caught it, and though a 'fish story' it is literally true. Harry (H. B. Dauchy) had the outrigger and had omitted to fasten the stick. The line is wound on so the loop in the end of the pole was all that held it. Suddenly came a 'big strike,' bending the pole so the loop slipped off and away went fish and tackle. A general shout of dismay—when in an instant Mrs. Dauchy, who had the inside line on the same side of the boat, said; 'I have a fish.' We let the boat come to and began pulling in. Lo! and behold—her squid had caught the stick of Harry's tackle and she had saved both tackle and fish. Joel pulled him alongside of the boat and landed him with a gaff-hook.

"Talk of beautiful colors. The 'dying dolphin's is no vision of the poet's fancy. In the water an exquisite blue, a moment after coming out a rich gold color with black spots, then in another moment turning to silver with blue spots, the blue with purple spots, and finally to a perfect mother-of-pearl with blue spots, the great black fin being an exquisite peacock blue."

Alaska Belles.

From an Alaska Letter.

At Killisnoo blackened faces were almost the rule, and every other native woman had her face coated with a mixture of seal oil and soot. It gives them a wild, strange look, and they giggle in the silliest way when one points to them. The old theories that they wore it as a sign of mourning, because they were angry, or rejoiced, or penitent, are exploded now, and it is known that it is simply a protection against the gnats and mosquitoes on land, and to keep their faces from burning when out in their canoes. It is an excellent cosmetic for the women, keeping their complexion soft and white, and when they wash it off on grand occasions their faces are as creamy white as the fairest of their Japanese sisters. A group of these Blackamoors made a picture as they sat inside a cabin door weaving their pretty baskets of the fine inside barks and roots of the cedar. One younger woman wore a silver pin sticking out through her under lip, another had a bone labrette, or tip ring, put through like a collar button, and the third, a wrinkled old crone, wore a great plug of wood over and inch across. These lip ornaments are worn by nearly all the women of the island tribes, and are a mark of age as certain as a family record. The big wooden plugs that they put in in their sere and yellow days push the lip out and give a hideous look to the wrinkled, blackened old crones who wear them. Noserings and earrings, silver rings on their fingers and bracelets on their wrists complete their full-dress array, and if they only wore something more barbaric than shawls and calico dresses they would be far more interesting as savages.

Quebec Belles.

"There are no homely girls in Quebec," a native-born Canadian said to a visitor to the ancient citadel city of Canada. "I have often stood at a window and watched for one in the throng passing on the sidewalks, but I have never yet seen a Quebec girl who could be described as ugly. I don't claim that they are all absolutely beautiful, but there is something in the clear, invigorating air, and perhaps in the soil and surroundings of this lofty and rocky city, that gives them sparkling eyes, brilliant complexions and elasticity of step. Montreal is full of pretty women, but Quebec can beat her in that respect. Have you noticed how easily our Quebec girls climb the steep city streets? When they are ascending a sidewalk that slopes upward at an apparent angle of 30 degrees, they don't seem to mind it. They don't lag, they don't get out of breath, they don't stagger from one side of the walk to the other. They just go up as lightly and gracefully as any lady can walk across a parlor floor. You can't do it and keep pace with them, unless you've been brought up here. They'd tire you out before you got half way from Breakneck steps to Dufferin terrace. The exercise they get is partly the secret of their good looks.

"Then there's another thing that helps. They're out of doors half the time. On a pleasant evening the terrace, that broad plank promenade which stretches for a quarter of a mile along the top of the precipice under the brow of Cape Diamond, is crowded with them, strolling in pairs and groups, chatting, laughing, and perhaps flirting a little. You don't mind that, do you? No. Well, look what a pleasure ground it is. Two hundred feet above the waters of the St. Lawrence, and facing one of the finest views in the world, as everybody admits, which extends from Point Levi down the river to Cape Tourment, and from the gorge of Montmerenci far back among the Laurentian mountains. You can't blame us Quebeckers for being proud of it. And there's where the Quebec girls breathe the pure air that puts roses in their cheeks and the snap into their eyes. Yes, sir; steep streets and plenty of fresh air, and, perhaps, the subtle influences of a world famous landscape, form the chief secret of the beauty of our girls."

All Sorts.

Masculine—Boy cotting. Feminine—Girl hammocking.

A thing of beauty may be a joy forever. But no man thinks so when he sees his wife fish the picture of a beautiful actress out of his inside coat pocket.

When a stump speaker takes a glass of water and pretends to be drinking, he is simply fishing for another idea. Away from the platform he would not look at water.

It now comes to light that accordeons were invented before the Christian era. The wonder is that they every survived the inquisition. But they might have been used as instruments of torture, come to think of it.

"Papa," said a little boy, looking up from his Sunday school lesson, "are all our deeds in this world recorded?" "Not always," replied the old man, who is a real estate lawyer. "I lost $350 once by failing to record a deed."

"The authorities became cognizant of considerable rehypothecation on his part and conveyed him to a protoplasm."

"What, in the name of Webster, is that?"

"If you will glance at Worcester you will find that protoplasm signifies a cell."

Arthur's Matrimonial Designs.

The latest piece of interesting gossip comes from New Jersey, to the effect that President Arthur contemplates matrimony, and that the fortunate young woman is Miss Tillie, the eldest daughter of Secretary Frelinghuysen. This will make Mr. Arthur the brother-in-law of the new American Minister to Berlin, who, we believe, has spoken for the sister of the prospective mistress of the White House. With a relative so high in power Mr. Kasson ought to become a fixed star in the political firmament.

BAILEYVILLE, Sept. 27, 1884.

We have had no political meetings yet, but hope our Blaine men will wake up soon.

Mr. "Y." alluded to our Dale-y visitor. We were pleased to see him last Saturday.

Mr. Robert Saxon, of Pennsylvania Furnace, and Miss Rogers, of Mount Union, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on the 25th inst. Now, Robert, we wish you all the happiness that love can bring.

We are anxious to find out who the young man was that went to hunt grapes and found a dear on the way. Hope he will find grapes the next time.

We notice to-day that our friend "Web" appeared very much interested in the welfare of some young ladies, one especially who is a resident of Pennsylvania Furnace.

A game of base ball played at the Marengo picnic elicited some interest. It was Centre Line vs. Marengo. At the end of the 3d inning the score was 27 to 0 in favor of Marengo, and the game closed. Two of the most famous members of the Rock Spring club took part in the game—E. S. and G. W. T. McW.

Mr. Laporte, of Tyrone, is visiting young friends in this vicinity.

News and Politics in Spring Mills

SPRING MILLS, Sept. 27.

Some of the railroad hands are getting ready to move their quarters to Oak Hall.

Mr. Wm. Shaffer, of Aaronsburg, has added one more family to our population by moving here.

Business is getting brisk here. With two first class hotels, five stores, mill, two saw mills and other business places and enterprises, Spring Mills is bound to boom.

Politics is rather quiet, but some of the Democrats laugh when the Watchman begs them not to bolt, when they learned the lesson of bolting from the Watchman, that bolted Curtin and several other nominees. They want to know why they have not as good a right to bolt as Meek had. Some bolt Woodward, many bolt Rhone because he's only a turncoat; and some bolt Walker. A Bellefonte Democrat was heard to say that Meek is secretly bolting Woodward, too. Our Republican nominees are all popular and will get the whole vote and some independent Democrats. S. I.

The Next two Weeks' Weather.

To the Editor of the Press.

SIR: Last week heavy rains fell in Michigan, Texas and Kansas. There were thunderstorms in about a dozen states. We did not have any rain in this state for just one month We had a thunder shower last night and about half an inch of rain fell. On Saturday morning there was a heavy frost in Dakota.

The hot dry weather has ripened the corn in this state and nearly all of our farm crops are out of danger by frost. Our farmers have received unusually good prices this season for their produce in New York markets, owing to the heavy frosts which occurred in June last and cut off the crops of the farmers East, especially in Connecticut. But the farmers of Vermont are more unfortunate than any others. They had no rain all Summer, and the frosts in August destroyed what little crops they raised.

This week the storms in the Northwest will move a little further Eastward than they did last week, and the drought in your State will be broken, and each week the rains will be a little heavier. The rains will be accompanied by an unusual amount of thunder and lightning. The storm belt, which was over Texas last week, will move to the South Atlantic States this week, and this morning light cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from the Northwest towards the Southeast. This shows that there is a thunderstorm far back in the Northwest. It will probably concentrate its energies in Northern Pennsylvania and Western New York on Wednesday, and it will be followed by a decided fall in the temperature for a few days, with sharp frosts.

On Wednesday the people of Philadelphia will be treated to warm, close, showery weather; Thursday, cloudy and showery; Friday, cloudy and cooler; Saturday, clear and cool; Sunday clear with frost; Monday, warmer and cloudy; Tuesday, cloudy and rainy, and in the Western district, Wednesday, heavy thunder showers; Thursday, cloudy and cooler; Friday, clear with heavy Northwest winds; Saturday, clear with frost; Sunday, clear and warmer; Monday and Tuesday, cloudy and rainy.

Oranges and Florida.

Better than Breezes and Blossoms—Under a New Flag.

Even the balmy air and orange blossoms of Florida fail to keep its inhabitants full of happiness and comfort. Art must help nature everywhere—in the tropics as well as among the the pines of the North. "And, chief among the blessings which are adapted to all zones," writes Dr. J. G. Wallace, of Fort Dade, Fla., "is PARKER'S TONIC. It seems to have the world for a field, and most of the current diseases yield to its action. I have used it in the case of a delicate and dyspeptic young lady with the most gratifying results. It seemed to accomplish with ease what the usual prescriptions and treatment for that miserable malady failed wholly to bring about. I am also glad to state that the Tonic has greatly relieved me personally of a troublesome atonic condition of the stomach of long standing. It is the ideal purifier and invigorant."

Messrs. HISCOX & Co call especial attention to the fact that after April 16, 1883, the name and style of this preparation will hereafter be simply Parker's Tonic. The word "Ginger" is dropped, for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their patrons by substituting inferior preparations under the name of Ginger; and as ginger is an unimportant flavoring ingredient in our Tonic, we are sure that our friends will agree with us as to the propriety of the change. There will be no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers wrapped under the name of "PARKER'S GINGER TONIC" contains the genuine medicine if the signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of outside wrapper. 16 35 4t

One Half Million Gone.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning a fire swept through Heacock's storage warehouse, Nos. 1315 and 1319 Brown street, and nine adjacent dwelling houses were also destroyed by the falling walls. The total loss will reach $500,000, of which there is an insurance of about $150,000. The storehouse was a six-story building and extended from Brown to Atmore street. Every floor in the big structure was filled to over-flowing with household goods, six hundred different families having their effects stored there, ranging from a single trunk to twenty wagon loads of furniture.

The fire, the origin of which is unknown, was discovered on the fourth floor, and by the time the firemen reached the scene all of that floor was in a blaze. Although the building was considered fire proof owing to the combustible nature of the contents. it was soon enveloped in flames. A strong wind blowing caused the flames to rise to a great height, and scattered sparks in every direction, causing almost a panic among the occupants of the neighboring houses. The fire was finally gotton under control and was confined to the store house, but the walls, unable to withstand the great strain upon them, toppled over and crashed through nine adjacent dwellings, which were totally wrecked, together with the household goods contained therein.

The occupants fortunately escaped before the crash. Heacock's only loss will be about $15,000 and the charges for storage, which he cannot now collect. The property was left in his establishment at the risk of the owners. Heacock had, however, placed $50,000 insurance for several parties, and he knew of $100,000 more which was placed by individuals themselves. Among the articles destroyed were five pianos and about forty large and expensive mirrors.

Blaine Annihilates Some Charges

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Mr. Blaine has written the following letter to William McKinley, of Ohio: "I have your favor stating certain charges against me which you wish to be able to contradict authoritatively. I answer you promptly and decisively. First, it is utterly untrue that I ever advocated a residence of twenty years as a requirement of naturalization. On the contrary I always opposed the party that suggested it. I think the only change in the naturalization laws for which I ever voted in congress was to admit these foreigners who honorably served in the union army to citizenship without the delay required of other foreigners.

"Second, I never voted to impose a tax of ten per cent. on miners by the internal revenue laws framed to raise money for the war. The proprietors of mines were taxed ten dollars per annum, just as lawyers physicians, builders and other callings were, but the individual miner, the man who actually worked in the mine, was not in the least affected by the tax. I voted for the tax on porprietors of mines as I did for every other tax needed for the support of the union armies. The tax was repealed fifteen years ago.

"Third. I do not own, and never did own, an acre of coal land or any other kind of land in the Hocking valley or in any other part of Ohio. My letter to Hon. H. Bundy in July last on this subject was accurately true.

Victoria Living Over a Stable.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., October 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Hulskampf, daughter and former coachman of Mr. Morosini, are living in East Haven with Congressman Charles F. Mitchell's coachman, in rooms over a stable.

Saved by a Load of Hay.

BRADFORD, Oct. 3.—"I tell you what, boys, I've railroaded it for years and been mixed up in all kinds of disasters, but I hope to croak right here if I want to be the eye-witness again of such an awful sight as I saw a day or two ago."

The speaker was a brakeman on the Erie.

"A day or so ago," he continued, "a tall and handsome woman got into the ladie's car at Dunkirk. With her was a bright and interesting boy, possibly two years of age. The child laughed and crowed and played with the passengers. When the train left Cattaraugus the woman, who seemed nervous, got out of her seat, picked up the baby and started for the rear end of the coach.

"A short distance east of Cattaraugus is a long, deep gulf, over which the railroad has built a high trestle. The distance from the top of the trestle to the wagon road below is perhaps one hundred feet. A sharp and short curve leads to the trestle. As the train rushed over the gulf a woman's piercing shriek was heard. I looked and saw an object leap from the platform into the rocky gulf. That object, sir was the lady passenger and in her arms closely clasped to her breast was her infant. I pulled the bell-cord and the train came to a halt. How it happened I cannot say, but at the time the woman jumped a load of hay, drawn by a pair of oxen, passed under the trestle. Mother and child landed squarely in the centre of the hay and were thus saved from a horrible death. The farmer was so horrified that he jumped from his wagon and darted up the bill. The woman, who was not hurt in the least, said her name was Mrs. Adam Scell and her home in Michigan. She was on her way to visit friends in the oil country. Her's was indeed a miraculous escape."

Mrs. Scell said that she could not explain her action. When near the car door she was seized with an insane desire to jump from the train.

The farmer, as he drove along, was thinking of his dead wife and daughter. When the visitors came through the clouds, as it were, and landed on his hay he thought that the dear departed had come back to earth to revisit him.

Death of Frank Chanfrau.

JERSEY CITY, Oct. 1.—Frank S. Chanfrau, the actor, is at the point of death at Taylor's Hotel. He is booked for a week in "Kit, the Arkansas Traveller," at the Academy of Music in this city and makes Taylor's Hotel his abiding place. This evening he went to supper shortly before 7 o'clock with Miss Mary Baker, his sister-in-law. While he sat at the table his knife fell from his hand and he reached for it. Before he had grasped it his head fell on his chest and he rolled unconscious to the floor. He was removed to his room, and the physician who was summoned states that he had a paralytic stroke, which has been followed by an attack of apoplexy. He is in a comatose state and will remain so for some time.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 2.—Frank S. Chanfrau, well known for his impersonation of "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler," and who was striken with apoplexy last evening, died this morning, without having recovered consciousness. His sons Henry and Frank; J. H. Alligier, a member of the press; C. W. Tayleur, his business manager, and Dr. John T. McGill were at his bedside. So calm was his departure that it was only in arranging his pillows that Tayleur discovered the fact.

Blaine's Reception in Ohio.

XENIA, O., Oct. 3.—Mr. Blaine left Cincinnati this morning at about 10 o'clock by a special train on the Little Miami. The crowd at the depot and the workmen in the shops facing the track cheered Mr. Blaine as the train moved out. The first stop was made at a little station, Milford, where there was a good-sized meeting. Mr. Blaine was warmly received, and he spoke a few words of thanks. At Morrow, in Warren county, was a fine demonstration.

There was a great turnout at Xenia. Blaine was received by the local committee and escorted by plumed knights mounted and on foot through the principal streets. Nearly every house was decorated, and the people in the streets numbered at least as many as the entire population of the city, there being a very large attendance from the adjoining country. When the procession reached the stand Mr. Blaine was received with loud cheering. He was presented to the people by Rev. Dr. James Gillespie Carson, a prominent Presbyterian clergyman, of Xenia, and spoke briefly, closing amid great cheering.

Both Father and Son Defaulters.

SALAMANCA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Orrin Sperry, Treasurer of Chautauqua county, absconded last spring. He was a defaulter to the amount of nearly $100,000. No trace of his whereabouts has yet been found. His son, E. T. Sperry, was his deputy. After the elder Sperry disappeared his son was missing for some time. He finally returned. He said he had been away looking for his father. When the affairs of the Treasurer's office were investigated Deputy Sperry admitted that he had used $3,000 of the county's money in the business of Porter & Sperry, a firm of which he was the junior partner. The firm made an assignment to the county. Further investigation revealed that the deputy treasurer was $10,000 in debt to the county. He was indicted by the last grand jury. He has in turn absconded, and his whereabouts are unknown.

Mormons Warned to Leave Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 2.—The excitement in Lewis county on account of the warning given to the Mormon converts to leave on pain of death, is on the increase. The time given the Mormons expires next Monday, and it is understood that serious trouble will result should the warning be disregarded. James Conder, at whose house Elders Gibbs and Berry were killed and whose son and stepson were slain, has been ordered to depart as soon as possible. William Winters, one of the Mormons, left a day or two ago for Missouri. Thomas Garrett went to Illinois, and Elisha Talleys, John Lancaster, and William S. Ely will leave this week. Others are selling all their property and preparing to get away before next Monday. Mormons in Hickman county are also looking for new homes. No trouble has yet occured in Wilson county, but the Mormons there are much alarmed.

England's Royal Family.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—It is stated that the Government will introduce a proposition into Parliament to make an annual allowance to Prince Albert Victor of ten thousand pounds sterling. Labouchere and other Radicals of the House of Commons have decided to oppose the measure when it comes to a vote.

Queen Victoria is trying to arrange a marriage between Prince Victor and Princess Marie of Belgium.

It is reported that the Queen will place Buckingham Palace at the service of the Prince of Wales, giving Marlborough House to Prince Victor.

Under the clamor that has been made by the Radical press, the Board of Admiralty has refused to give to Prince Leiningen, the Queen's cousin, the post of Admiral at the Nore, and have placed him on the retired list.

Frightful Disaster.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3.—From local officers of the Omaha road and specials the following additional particulars of the railway accident yesterday on the North Wisconsin railroad, near Bayfield, are learned: The train consisted of three flat cars and had a crew of 23 men, who were all riding on the engine and tender. The engine plunged into a washout, and the boiler was staved in, and the escaping steam added to to the horrors of the disaster. Every man, except one, was either killed or wounded. Two, Johnson and McCann, were killed outright, and nine others were badly scalded. The wounded were removed to Ashland, where four more died before morning, as follows: J. McCoy, conductor, of Elroy; J. A. Babbinger, engineer, of Alton; S. Morris, fireman, and M. M. Clorth. It is believed that three more will die. Ten coffins were ordered this morning from St. Paul, indicating that the number of victims was even greater.

A Millionaire's Marriage.

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., Oct. 1.—Hon. Jacob Tome, the millionaire, of this place, and Miss Eva S. Nesbitt, eldest daughter of Henry C. Nesbitt, Esq., were married at 12 m., to-day. Revs. Thomas E. Martindale and R. C. Jones performed the ceremony. It was a very quite and unostentatious affair, and took place at the residence of the bride's father. The bride is an accomplished and estimable young lady. She was richly attired in a handsome traveling costume. Mr. and Mrs. Tome left for New York, where they will remain until next week, and will then return and take possession of the princely home of the millionaire bridegroom.

The Price of Writing Paper.

SPRINGFIED, Mass., Oct. 1.—The writing-paper-makers' branch of the National Paper-Makers' Association had a special meeting here to-day to consider the question of reducing the production of fine papers to counteract the bad influence on the market caused by the prohibition of the importation of foreign rags, which has increased the cost of paper stock. After through discussion a resolution was unanimously adopted not to offer paper for sale or receive any orders therefor except at an advance of price from one to two cents per pound.

Candidate Shot At.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 2.—A dispatch from Sullivan, Ind., says some persons fired a shot into the car in which Governor St. John sat last night near that town while enroute to Terre Haute. The ball lodged in the inside of the car in front of him. The Governor took the matter coolly. No clue to the identification of the person who fired the shot has been discovered. The motive for the deed is unknown.

A Hotel Burned.

MT. WASHINGTON, N. H., Oct. 1.—The Glen House and all its outbuildings were totally destroyed by fire at eight o'clock this evening. From all appearances nothing is saved. The woods adjoining are in a blaze. A strong breeze is blowing from the northwest and the fire presented a grand sight from the summit. The house was owned by W. & C. R. Milliken and closed for the season to-day.

Severe Drought in Virginia.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 1.—The thermometer has scarcely fallen below 90 night or day for a week. The effects of drought around Piedmont are unparalleled. Vegetation is burned up and the hay crop destroyed. The streams are drying up and graziers are driving their stock into Tennessee for water.

Blaine and Logan.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—General Logan and wife arrived this morning. Blaine and Logan are to hold one or two public receptions to-day and will review a procession to-night.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—Mr. Blaine breakfasted this morning. Long before he was accessible the hote halls and corridors were crowded with people attracted there by his presence and that of General Logan. As soon as Mr. Blaine's rooms were opened callers began to pour in, and the pressure continued all the forenoon. Several delegations called to pay their respects; one from the Irish-American Republican League, who presented resolutions and assurances of support; one representing the Republicans of Tennessee; one sent to urge Mr. Blaine to visit the Louisville Exposition, and one representing the Jewish element.

At 12.20 Mr. Blaine was escorted to the Chamber of Commerce, where he was very warmly received, being introduced by Capt. W. W. Peabody, President of the Chamber of Commerce.

Short Telegrams.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 2.—Colonel John F. Marsh, has positively declined the nomination of the People's party for Lieutenant Governorship.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2.—The Railroad and Coal Trades tribunal to fix a mining rate for the ensuing six months met this morning, and, after organizing, made application to the Court for a license.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The period of ten days during which Frank Hatton may hold the office of postmaster general expires to-morrow, and it will be necessary to designate or appoint permanently some person to fill that office before Monday morning.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Sir Evelyn Baring sent a dispatch to the government that Gordon, having bombarded Berber for some time, effected an entry into the place and recaptured it. The rebels and hostile inhabitants fled w en the bombardment ceased.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 5.—The fire which destroyed the royal palace last night and spread to other buildings, was under control at 1 30 this morning. The archives of the Kigsdag and a number of important works of art, including some by Thorwaldsen, were destroyed. The damage amounts to several million kroners. The palace chapel and Thorwaldsen's museum were saved, but it cost the lives of ten soldiers, who were burned to death while rendering aid. The king and the crown prince were at the fire until midnight.

English Views of American Politics.

He is indeed dull of comprehension who cannot decide what ticket to vote in this year of grace 1884. That our readers may know how their English cousins across the water desire them to vote we clip a few paragraphs from the English newspapers. All patriotic Americans will profit by these comments and vote to protect their homes and firesides, which will be for Blaine and Logan. Read:

With the nomination of Cleveland American politics will be taken out of the party rut. The Irish-American citizen's hatred of Cleveland is the best certificate obtainable for his elevation. For this reason he should merit the support of all true [Angle] Americans.—[London Telegraph July 12.

It is doubtful whether a better choice were possible. The issue, however, is most uncertain.—[London Times, July 12.

A more satisfactory result than the choice of Cleveland could hardly be desired. Should the American people prefer Blaine it will be because the country is afraid that a party that has been so long out of power would be too greedy for the spoils of office.—[London Standard, July 12.

Cleveland's nomination by the Democratic party is the sign of the outcropping of a new spirit in politics. His election would reflect great credit on America. America's foreign relations will be safer in Mr. Cleveland's hands than in those of Mr. Blaine.—[London Daily News.

Mr. Blaine's conduct when he was secretary of state was not such as to lead us to desire his advent to power. The Democrats, on the contrary, appear to have chosen a candidate with a good record.—[London Echo.

The nomination of Governor Cleveland as Democratic candidate for the presidency is a heavy defeat for the Irish party. The Democrats may be congratulated on having made a wise choice, and there seems every probability at present of their carrying the presidency. From an outside point of view, Governor Cleveland is somewhat to be preferred to Mr. Blaine. The latter has Irish and filibustering leanings, and is a stronger Protectionist than his rival.—[London Globe.

The Republican candidate is a strong Protectionist, in which respect he is in full accord with the great bulk of the American people. Moreover, he is a champion of the movement looking toward a revival of the American shipping. * * * If the election of Mr. Blaine, the leading American Protectionist, to the presidency is to be signal of a "revival of American shipping," the outlook for our merchant navy becomes the reverse of hopeful.—[Shipping World, London.

Howard Humor.

HOWARD, Oct. 6, 1884.

The Republicans of this and adjoining townships, in order to show their patriotic spirit, had a rousing political mass-meeting in our town last Saturday evening. A flag was raised on the old Garfield and Arthur poles, which floats majestically in the air bearing the names of Blaine and Logan. J. G. Love, Esq., addressed the vast assembly. The Howard band furnished excellent music for this occasion and also for the Methodist festival held at the same place and time, which was also a grand success, realizing a snug profit.

The school house in the borough is almost finished. This is a large and handsome building, and shows the sound judgment of the Board of Directors in having such a pleasant and comfortable building erected, and the skill of workmanship of the contractor, Mr. David Pletcher. No pains have been spared to make it meet the present educational demands, and it it is quite an improvement to the town. It contains four rooms, three of which will be occupied this winter, taught by an accomplished corps of teachers—Mr, Morrison, John Smith and Miss Fannie Gardner—the two last-mentioned being of Howard.

Mr. Wayne Gardner's new house is nearing completion and will be occupied by Mr. Wilbur Bickle, of Jacksonville, one of Howard township's teachers. SCRIBE.

Gatesburg Gossip.

GUYER, CENTRE CO., PA., Oct. 4.

MR. EDITOR.—The recent rains were much needed and were very acceptable.

The chestnut crop is good in this vicinity and the young folks are enjoying themselves.

Squirrels are scarce and the principal sport is coon hunting. Trot out your coon dogs.

On Monday evening, September 29, we had the pleasure of listening to a lecture delivered by Mrs. Reese, of Ohio, on the subject of "Temperance." The meeting was held in Ross M. E. church and attracted a large audience. Her lecture was grand and she succeeded in organizing a W. C. T. U. in this place, of which Mrs. Pierce Gray was elected President, Mrs. Thomas Roop Vice President, Mrs. J. L. Rider Secretary, and Mrs. E. Ebbs Treasurer. We wish them success.

On the 3d of October the Marengo Literary Society was organized at Marengo with the following officers: President, R. N. Elenbarger; Vice President, Joseph S. Myers; Secretary, Frank Rider; Treasurer, Jacob Barto. CATO.

["Cato's" letters will always be welcome if they continue as newsy as the one published above.—ED.]

—Mr. Thos. J. Taylor, of Unionville, will soon begin a series of entertaining lectures on the subject of "Demonomy and his Curses." Mr. Taylor will illustrate his lecture with the aid of the celebrated cosmoscope. It will be denunciatory of the curse of strong drink, and if there is an individual in this blessed country who is earnest in what he says it is Mr. Taylor on the subjects which he will discuss at these lectures. He will probably begin quite soon in Unionville and afterwards visit Snow Shoe Intersection and other places in the county. We recommend him to the people of the communities where he will lecture, and can assure them that the lectures will be entertaining and profitable.

The First of the Season.

Mr. Ed. Allison, brother of Mr. Wm. Allison, candidate for Assembly, went out hunting last week with a large number of friends, and was so fortunate as to kill an immense four-pronged buck. There was a bush between Mr. Allison and the animal and he could not shoot with certain accuracy, but nevertheless broke one of the buck's legs. The noble animal, when dressed, weighed 160 pounds. Mr. Allison is modest and did not care to have the fact known that he was so exceptionally successful, and cautioned the company not to give him away, but, Ed, you know that "Murder will out," and we congratulate you on the result.

"THE Patriot Vindicated" is the head-line we notice in the Harrisburg Patriot of Friday. That means that the Patriot, at an early day during the campaign, published a contemptible lie about James G. Blaine, and a suit was brought against the Patriot for doing so. That journal is now endeavoring to wriggle out of its dilemma, but is finding it very difficult to escape punishment.

—There were no services in the Episcopal church of this place on Sunday.

—We have this week had the pleasure of examining the Lives of Blaine and Logan, published by the John S. Willey Publishing Co., of New York. The book is ably written, well printed and bound, and finely illustrated by both steel and wood engravings. In addition to the biographies of the candidates, the work contains a mass of valuable and interesting matter bearing upon the great political questions of the day. In short it is just such a book as every voter should own. This company are offering agents splendid inducements, and their books will give satisfaction to subscribers. A description of the book, price, &c., and also their book, Lives of Cleveland and Hendricks, will be found in our advertising columns.

HUMAN BLOOD.—On the purity and vitality of the human blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use. Sold by dealers.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, Oct. 2, 1884.

Pick your winter apples.

The time for husking corn is near.

The recent rains are welcome.

Central Academy closed the fall term on Friday last.

A literary society will be organized at Marengo in the near future.

Mr. Chapman A. Wright has been engaged to teach the Loveville school this winter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Roller, of Buffalo Run, is at present making an extended visit with friends in this community.

An infant child of Mr. Robert Downing suffered a severe attack of infant cholera recently, but at last accounts was improving rapidly.

A Mrs. Reese, of somewhere in Ohio, is delivering temperance lectures in this part of the county. Those who have listened to her pronounce her a fluent talker.

How's this for high? A young lady, while discussing a young gent's moustache, remarked that "it reminded her of a contest at the National game, there being nine on each side."

Mr. G. L. Ebbs, while catching for the Marengo nine, was struck in the face by a foul ball, inflicting quite painful bruises.

We were prevailed upon to witness the closing of the Central Academy Literary Society on Saturday evening, the 27th ult. The programme of exercises was quite long, but as all the participants were well prepared the entertainment was very interesting. Mr. C. A. Wright delivered an excellent oration. The dialogues were of the most humerous description. The rest of the entertainment consisted principally of readings, essays, etc., with a debate on the following question: "Resolved, That England in her treatmentment of Ireland is not deserving of censure." After the literary programme was completed and some business attended to, the society adjourned.

The G. A. R. basket picnic held at Marengo Saturday, the 27th inst., was a partial failure because of the inclemency of the weather. Nothing of importance occurred in the forenoon. At 2 o'clock p. m., when your correspondent arrived on the ground, he found about 200 persons congregated there enjoying themselves as best they could. But ere long the Washington Cornet Band commenced discoursing music, which also aroused the Stone Valley drum corps into action, and together they rendered quite an enjoyable concert. The Tyrone base ball nine, which was to have been there, failed to arrive, and the playing was confined to three nines. Two games were played, the Marengo, the nine contesting in both games, coming off victorious with the Gatesburg by a score of 27 to 5 and with a union nine 27 to 0. The festival held in the evening was slimly attended and some of the cakes and other articles were auctioned off wholesale. We have thus far failed to learn the amount of the proceeds. Too bad, boys, that your picnic was thus predestined to ill luck, but try it again some time and you will be more successful.

WEB.

A Word from an Old and Popular Correspondent.

STORMSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 4, 1884.

EDITOR NEWS: Mr. W. S. Gray's new house is almost completed and for convenience and taste it will excel any residence in the valley. W. S. says that his chicken lice destroyer works like a charm. I should think it did. The corn crop through this valley is excellent, and enough of potatoes to supply the whole Cleveland squad.

Capt. Jno. A. Hunter is building an addition to his house and repairing the old part which will beautify the whole.

Mr. George Gates, the great light of the Greenback party of this township, was knocked out the first round at the State convention on Sept. 30th. If I was George I would bolt.

There is a great deal of sickness through this valley.

In company with Mr. H. G. Elder, we had the pleasure of dining with Mr. Calvin Patterson, Sup't of the experimental farm at State College. Mr. Patterson took us through his barn and stock yards where everything was the model of neatness; and such cows—fat, sleek and of the best stock that the country can produce (short horns). Besides he has two beautiful bulls—one that is valued at $400. The other one is a thoroughbred, too, but I did not take much stock in him as I could plainly see Cleveland blood in his eye.

The Republican county ticket gives entire satisfaction in this end of the county and will receive the whole Republican vote. The Republican party seems to be a party of school teachers, or at least the nominees are generally school teachers. Lincoln was a school teacher, Garfield and Arthur were both school teachers, James G. Blaine was an instructor of the young in his early days, besides we have several teachers on our county ticket. Mr. H. G. Elder followed teaching for a number of years and in my opinion (and a great many others) is the only man fit to fill the office of prothonotary. He is young, active, genteel, obliging and capable of filling the office with dignity and respect. While the Republicans in the county are united on their ticket, the Democrats are kicking fearfully, and in my opinion there will be some very curious voting done unless the party whip is cracked with a great deal of vigor. I heard a Democrat say in your town, a few days ago, that the Republican convention was a tame affair. Well, yes, the Republican party is civilized.

CORPORAL.

HIS GIRL.

[From the New York Sun.]

Whether she opens her blue eye
To match its color with the sky,
Or her hair catches all the gold
That the great sun himself can hold;

Or if her face be a brunette,
Her eyes and hair as black as jet,
Yet still her heart must be a blonde,
With the white snow to correspond.

All the five senses, good and sound,
In my girl surely must be found,
And as a natural consequence,
The sixth one, common sense.

Chest must be broad enough to hold
The heart and lungs by health controlled;
Her waist not pinched up like a wasp,
Squeezed in the corset's bony grasp.

And neither must she pinch her foot
By wearing but a half-sized boot;
Or thrust the heel, to cap the whole,
Into the middle of her sole.

She must be measured by her mind,
And unto book lore much inclined;
Play the piano, if she like,
Or the guitar strings sweetly strike.

But, although well versed in her book,
She must, and shall, be a good cook;
Is a man's heart the seat of bliss
When a man's stomach empty is?

Dear editor of the great Sun,
Which doth a world-wide circuit run,
Amid New York's vast din and whirl,
Pray, have you ever seen my girl?

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Works through the blood, regulating, toning and invigorating all the functions of the body.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Cheers for Blaine.

OBERLIN, Sept. 29.—The first stop was at Elyria, the place visited by Mr. Blaine on Saturday. There was a crowd at the depot. All kept calling "Blaine! Blaine! Bring him out!" As the train moved off he stepped out on the rear platform, and the people gave him three cheers. At this station a delegation from Oberlin boarded the train, headed by Hon. James Monroe, ex-member, of the house of representatives. A little after 10 o'clock the train reached Oberlin. The arrangments here were better than any other place, so far, in Ohio. There was a passage way, guarded by uniformed clubs, from the train to the stand. The stand itself was carpeted and beautifully decorated. The crowd was very large and enthusiastic. Hundreds of people from the country sat in their wagons and every tree in sight of the stand was loaded down with boys.

Mr. Monroe introduced Mr. Blaine, who, as soon as the applause, with which he was received, had subsided, said:

"Mr. Monroe, Ladies and Gentlemen: I do not know any more appropriate thing for a condidate who represents republican principles than to pay a visit to Oberlin, for if there be any one place in the United States above another where republican principles were planted originally and matured and developed and strengthened into full growth it is Oberlin. [Applause.]

"The establishment of this college fifty years ago; the radicalism, if you please, which it taught from its start; the great battle it waged; the immense success it attained without donation from the national or state government, but merely from the generous benevolence of men who believe in the principles it represented, mark it an event not merely in the edvcational world, but in the political world as well, and I am glad to stand here to pay my tribute to this great institution and to acknowledge as the representative, as I am, for the time, of republican principles, the debt which that party owes to the great institution at Oberlin. [Applause.]

"I thank you for your kind welcome to this place, and thank you for the generous outpouring of this audience. I thank you because I know what it represents and because I know that you know what I represent. [Enthusiastic cheering.]

"If anything could add to my pleasure in this visit it would be that I have been presented to you by one with whom I had the honor many years ago to be associated in congress, and whom to know was to respect and esteem, for in all my public service I met no more honorable, no more pure, no more efficient member than James Monroe, of the Oberlin district. [Renewed applause.] Thanking you, gentlemen and ladies, again for your generous reception, I must bid you good-bye."

Stops were made at Sandusky, Clyde and Fremont, and Blaine was presented to a large number of people present. At Toledo he addressed 10,000 people at League park, after which he was driven to a hotel, and subsequently reviewed a great torch light procession from the grand stand. There was a large democratic parade this evening. The rival processions between them seemed to have taken possession of the entire city, but everything passed off peaceably.

FOSTORIA, Ohio, Sept. 30.—A delegation of one hundred leading merchants and other business men, members of the Business Men's club of Toledo, called this morning to pay their respects to Mr. Blaine. He received them at a quarter before 9, in the parlor of the Boody house. The meeting was quite informal. The chairman of the delegations assured Mr. Blaine of the earnest support of the business interests of Northwestern Ohio. Mr. Blaine thanked the gentlemen, and remarked that the republican ticket was certainly entitled to the support of the business men, because the contest was primarily and emphatically a contest for the preservation and promotion of the business interests of the country. At 9 a. m. Mr. Blaine was driven to the depot. Senator B. K. Bruce, Emory Storrs, ex Governor Foster, Judge West and Senator Plumb, of Kansas, were added to the party of yesterday.

At Fostoria, the home of Governor Foster, there was a large gathering, and when Governor Foster presented Blaine the people broke into loud cheering. After briefly thanking the people he stepped into a carriage and was driven to the Baltimore and Ohio depot, where, as the train started, he was given three rousing cheers. At Tiffin another great crowd had assembled, and Blaine was received with cheering and waving of flags. Upon being introduced Blaine recalled his school boy days in southeastern Ohio forty-three years ago, and said those forty three years have been divided between Democratic and Republican rule. He would leave it to the voters to say under which there has been the most rapid progress. [Loud applause.] There was great cheering as the party left the station. Senator Bruce also made a short speech.

At Kenton Blaine was introduced by the Republican candidate for secretary of state, General Robinson. At Bellefontaine there was a large crowd of enthusiastic people. At Urbana Blaine was escorted by a large body of plumed knights on foot and on horseback, among them a troop of ladies wearing white plumes. Many thousand persons were assembled around the stand in the central square of the city, to which Blaine was escorted. After he had been introduced he stood for some seconds reviewing the stirring scene. His speech was frequently interrupted by applause. At Springfield, a large manufacturing town, all the shops had been closed in order to give an opportunity to see Blaine, who was driven around the city and back to a stand near the depot, where he addressed a large assemblage.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 1.—Mr. Blaine, accompanied by ex-Governor Foster, Senator Frye, and others, were driven out at 9 o'clock this morning to the Soldiers' Home, near Dayton. He was received by the governor of the home, General Patrick, and shown through the buildings and grounds. While he was inspecting the pretty things in the music hall a large body of the soldiers followed him in and began calling, "Blaine—Blaine. Speech—speech." Mr. Blaine thanked them for the kind reception they had given him, and remarked that the beauty and comfort which he saw around him in this the chief soldiers' home in the country confirmed him in his opinion as to the good of the institutions, and rewarded him for the part he had taken as a member of the military committee of the house of representatives in their establishment. The soldiers cheered Blaine as he retired. He entered his special car and proceeded on his journey toward Cincinnati.

At Hamilton Blaine discussed the tariff, and in closing his speech said: "On the 14th day of this month you will have an opportunity to tell the people of the United States whether you believe in that doctrine. If you do, you will secure not only its continuance but its permanent triumph. But if on the other hand you should falter and fall back, it might produce disaster elsewhere. The responsibility is on you. Is your courage equal to your responsibility [Yes, yes]. Is your confidence equal to your courage [It is, it is]. Then I have nothing more to say except to bid you good-bye." [Cheers]. Blaine arrived at Cincinnati at 3 30 o'clock and was driven to the Burnett house through a dense mass of people who cheered loudly. Upon arriving at the hotel Blaine was obliged to come out on the balcony and return his thanks. The crowd cheered again as he retired into the hotel.

A Voice from the Pulpit.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 28.—In a sermon to-night, Rev. John Alabaster, pastor of Meridian Street Methodist Episcopal Church, which is the leading Methodist Church in the city, strongly advised his congregation against voting for Cleveland, and, in the course of his sermon said:

"God forbid that I should be ready to believe evil of any man, much less to say it; but if there is any ground for the oft-repeated stories concerning one of the candidates for the presidency; if thirty ministers in his own city are not all liars, then this nation is to-day disgraced by the political party which nominated him. Whether all is true or not, the party have a right to insist upon the withdrawal of such a candidate, and the people of this great Christian land have a right to protest against holding up such an example before the young men of America. This is not a question of party; it is a question of common decency; it is a question that touches every home in the land; it touches every parent, every young man, every young woman, every wife and every daughter.

"I say it plainly, a man for president of this great Republic should in matters of chastity be like Cæsar's wife, 'above suspicion.' The temperance question, the tariff question and all other questions are secondary to the question of pure homes. The bare possibility of lodging a libertine in the White House ought to send a shudder through every family in the land. As a husband, as a parent, as the son of my mother, as a lover of my country, as a friend of all that is pure and as a Christian minister, I solemnly protest against such a possibility."

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—The Chronicle-Telegraph's Blairsville (Pa.) special says: The boiler in the engine room of the Millwood coal shaft exploded last evening, killing John Hanna and a number of others. Another dispatch says that owing to the distance of Millwood shaft the particulars of the explosion are meagre. It is known, however, that John Hanna, the fireman, was the only one killed outright. Several others were seriously hurt and one or two will probably die. The boiler house was completely demolished, entailing a loss to the company of five thousand dollars. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Thirty Persons Killed.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 29, via Galveston.—A cloud-burst occurred at Pachuca on the afternoon of the 27th instant, causing a terrible inundation. The Amalgamating Works were destroyed and considerable silver which was under treatment was lost. It is estimated that thirty persons were killed. A great deal of property was destroyed, and many cattle were drowned.

A Bad Disease—for the Democrats.

Indianapolis Journal (Rep.)

Having failed in damaging Mr Blaine by attacking his wife, the Democrats have now broke loose on his kidneys. They say he has it bad—that is, his kidneys have, and there is no hope of his living through the four years, if, indeed, it is possible to live to be inaugurated. Bright's disease must be awful—for the Democracy.

Collision.

GRAFTON, W. Va., Sept 29.—Conductor Tom Furley and Fireman Cornius O'Connell were killed near here by a collision.

A Great Manufactory Burned.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 30.—A most destructive fire occurred at Natrona, twenty miles from this city, on the West Penn railroad, at an early hour this morning, by which the Pennsylvania salt manufacturing company's acid manufactory at that place was damaged to the extent of one hundred thousand dollars. The company, which is the largest in the United States, have property there valued at half a million, and engage in the manufacture of all kinds of acids, carbonates, sulphate of soda and oil vitriol.

The fire started in the vitriol department at midnight, and before the flames were subdued the building, two hundred feet long, eighty-five wide, and fifty-five feet high, together with valuable machinery, was entirely destroyed. Fortunately it was calm, or the destruction would have been greater. The firm is composed of Philadelphia gentlemen, and the main office is located there. The building burned was fully insured, but in what companies and amount the manager here is unable to say, as the insurance was all placed by the Philadelphia office.

Walter Sherwood for Congress.

WILLIAMSPORT, Sept. 30.—The Democratic Conference for the Sixteenth district, composed of Cameron, Lycoming, McKean, Potter, Sullivan and Tioga counties, met here this afternoon to nominate a candidate for Congress. Mortimer F. Elliott would not consent under any circumstances to accept the nomination; neither would Robert P. Allen, of Williamsport. It was then offered to J. Henry Cochran, of Cameron county, but he positively declined the honor. Finally the name of Walter Sherwood of Tioga county, was proposed and he was promptly nominated by acclamation. He is a son of Henry Sherwood, who was elected to Congress over William H. Armstrong in 1870 by 27 majority and served one term. He is about 35 years of age, a lawyer by profession and is now serving his third term as Burgess of the borough of Wellsboro.

The State's Display at New Orleans.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—R. H. Thomas, of Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county, one of the commissioners appointed by the Governor to attend the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans in December next, had a consultation with Governor Pattison to-day with reference to the exhibition to be made by the State. Mr. Thomas said Pennsylvania would make a creditable display. Samples of cereals have been sent to Mr. Thomas from over half of the counties of the State. These will be forwarded to New Orleans in abont a month. The fruit exhibit promises to be indifferent.

A Canadian Town Flame-swept.

QUEBEC, Sept. 30.—About 10 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the village of Louisville, situated about fifty miles from Montreal. At 2 a. m. over twenty houses had been destroyed and the fire was still raging. Assistance has been telegraphed for from Three Rivers. A strong wind is blowing. Nothing short of providence can save the whole town from being laid in ashes. The Catholic church has caught fire and is burning rapidly. The loss will be $25,000. A sudden change in the wind saved the town from being almost completely destroyed.

Marshal Swartzwelder Dead.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 30.—This afternoon about three o'clock Marshal Swartzwelder died at his residence at Sewickley of congestion of the brain. Mr. Swartzwelder has been ill for several days, but his symptoms were not regarded as dangerous until a short time before he died. He has long been regarded as the foremost criminal lawyer at the Pittsburg bar. He was born in 1819 and has been practicing law for over forty years. He twice represented his district in the State Legislature, was a delegate in the Constitutional Convention and was frequently mentioned for Congress.

Will of the Late John W. Garrett

He directs his trustees to invest the sum of $100,000 in such a manner as to produce a yearly sum of $6,000, which shall be paid yearly to aid in improving the condition of the poor of Baltimore. He further directs that the sum of $50,000, out of the net income of his estate, be devoted annually to benevolent and educational purposes.

Democratic Defection.

HUNTINGDON, Sept. 30.—J. F. Mears, of Broad Top City, one of the most prominent Democrats and extensive coal operators in the county, has renounced Cleveland and Hendricks and determined to support Blaine and Logan. He expressly authorizes this statement. This and other defections from the Democrats in the mining regions indicate a political revolution in that part of the county.

She Goes with Her Coachman.

TROY, N. Y., October 1.—W. B. Bartholomy, a coachman, was secretly married on Friday last to Mary Emma Babcock, adopted daughter of W. J. Simmons, a wealthy business man of this city. The couple are preparing to leave Troy.

Senator Cameron.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 30.—Senator Cameron and wife left for Cleveland this afternoon. The Senator will probably remain in Ohio until after the October election and meanwhile will do all in his power to elect the Republican ticket.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N, Y. 15-37-1yeow

They say grace before meals at the house of Mr. Peterson. One day a little girl living in the neighborhood was invited to dinner, and the grace feature of the meal excited her curiosity. "What does 'amen mean?" asked the little stranger. "You don't know that?" replied one of the Peterson children. "Why, that means we can pitch into the grub."

A New Departure.

One good result of the hard times a few years ago, was the bringing into life an article in proprietary medicine, which gave to every purchaser a full equivalent for his money. The rule of this class of medicines is from 10 to 25 doses for $1, the best only reaching 40. Messrs. Hood & Co. took a new departure and in the article now so well and favorably known as Hood's Sarsaparilla, they gave the unprecedented quantity of 100 doses for $1. These facts commend this remedy to the consideration of the sick, also the well, for they are liable to be sick.

The Georgia Election.

Polishing the Wrong End.

Many men daily polish their boots who never give a thought to the condition of their hair, except to harrow it occasionally with a brush and comb, or submit it to the paralyzing attentions of the average barber. What happens? Why, this: From neglect, mental anxiety, or any of a score of causes, the hair turns prematurely gray and begins to fall out. Parker's Hair Balsam will at once stop the latter process and restore the original color. An elegant dressing, free from grease.

"Care will kill a cat," says an old saw. This particular old saw prevaricates. We take the utmost care every time we shy a bootjack at the feline fence infestors to throw straight, and yet we never hit one of 'em, let alone giving them the coup de grace.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—October was ushered in by a heavy fog.

—The rain doesn't seem to dampen the ardor of the Greenbackers.

—We'll call this the equinoctial storm, although it comes rather late.

—Most of the Greenbackers are of opinion that fusion wont fuse this year.

—D. Garman & Son are adding a telephone to the other improvements of their store.

—Mr. Isaac Haupt has cultivated some exceedingly fine corn this year on his mountain farm.

—Most of the delegates wore diminutive spoons for badges. Their diet consists principally of soup.

—Mr. Matthew Murray, of Hollidaysburg, who came to attend the Greenback convention, remained in town until Wednesday afternoon.

—Mrs. Captain Breeze and her family, who have been spending the past summer at the home of Mrs. B's father, Gov. Curtin, in this place, departed this morning for their home in Newport.

—Several of the Greenbackers were sufficiently interested in the new cave to explore it and it is supposed they have mentally resolved to retire into it permanently after election day.

—The Democratic Judicial conference, which met in Tyrone on Monday, September 29, continued to ballot until Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and then adjourned to meet in Huntingdon on Wednesday.

—The reporter of the DAILY NEWS is under great obligations to that Prince of Barbers, Mr. R. A. Beck, whose gentlemanly actions, kindness of heart and agreeable manners have won for him many friends. In short, it is difficult in mere words to testify the appreciation and high regard we have for Mr. Beck.

—The Greenback convention assembled in Bellefonte last week included only one minister among its delegates, and as the time of his arrival was uncertain, Rev. Milton K. Foster, of the M. E. church, was appealed to to open the convention with prayer. He obligingly consented to pray for these misguided politicians.

—Reynolds' Opera House was well filled on Tuesday evening of last week by a select audience which was well pleased with the bright and sparkling manner in which the interesting play was rendered. The performance gave such general satisfaction that the Fifth Avenue Company may always rest sure of a warm reception in Bellefonte.

—The tenth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in Harrisburg, October 15th, 16th and 17th. Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of Boston; Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, of Iowa; and Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickson, of New York, and other well known speakers will be present. The special line of work of this organization, for the coming year, is to secure a law requiring the "Effect of Stimulants and Narcotics upon the Human System," to be taught in all schools under State control.

—While Capt. Amos Mullen was in Philadelphia a few days ago, the "Bellefonte Club" G. A. R., of that city, who represent the Lambs and Razors, presented him with a handsome banner, which is now displayed in the office of the Bush House. This organization of the G. A. R. are always doing something which is appropriate and pleasant and which is an indication of their hearty good will, and this act of theirs is an evidence of the esteem in which they hold their friends in Bellefonte in general and Capt. Mullen in particular.

The National Greenback State Convention.

The National Greenback Labor party met in its eighth convention at 11 o'clock on Tuesday, the 30th ult., in the Court House, State Chairman Rynder presiding. He introduced to the convention, Rev. Milton K. Foster, pastor of the M. E. church of this place. Who made a calm, dignified and earnest prayer, thanking God for his blessings, the form of government which we enjoy and asking divine blessing on the proceedings of the convention—that their deliberations may be for the best interests of the country.

Mr. Rynder said that the first duty of the convention is to select a temporary chairman and, on motion, Jas David, quite an aged gentleman from Clinton county, was elected to that position. He took the chair after being introduced by Chairman Rynder. The temporary chairman's only speech was that he would "proceed at once to business without decorations." The following gentlemen were made temporary secretaries: Victor Lotier, of Montour; Gerald Miller, of Philadelphia; and Frank Quick, of Susquehanna. A committee of five on credentials was appointed as follows: Frank Koffman, chairman; John S. May, of Venango; David Duffy, of Schuylkill; John W. Otto, of Blair; and A. A. Murphy, of Northumberland.

A motion for the appointment of a committee of five on resolutions was made, but objected to as unparliamentary. The chair at first ruled in favor of the motion, but the predominating opinion of the convention being against the decision he withdrew it, when the motion was laid on the table.

Congressman Chas. N. Brumm, of Schuylkill county, was invited to address the convention, and did so in a speech describing the vicissitudes of the Greenback party. After a speech by ex-Senator Thomas St. Clair, of Indiana county, the convention adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

The convention met at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon, and were entertained by two recitations by Beeswax Taylor, fusion candidate for the Legislature from Allegheny county. The first recitation had reference to Ben. Butler, and the second was "The Bankers and I are Out."

The sessions of the Greenback State Convention were continued on Tuesday afternoon and a permanent organization was effected by electing ex-Senator St. Clair, of Indiana county, for chairman. Mr. N. L. Atwood was nominated for Congressman-at-Large and Thomas A. Armstrong, of Pittsburg, Wm. Wilhelm of Schuylkill, and Sam'l Calvin of Blair, for electors at large. A list of district electors was chosen, only one or two districts being left vacant, which the State Central Committee is empowered to fill and also to supply future vacancies that may occur.

Mr. T. P. Rynder was again chosen to the position of State Chairman and to heal some dissensions, one or two vice chairmen were selected. This was the source of much very strong and somewhat acrimonious debate.

The committee on platform and resolutions reported a brief and explicit statement of party principles. The resolutions were adopted one by one, and the finance resolution as well as the Protection resolution was debated and changed to suit the sentiment of the convention. After one little delegate had exhausted himself on the subject of Protection, taking issue with the Republican position on that question, Congressman Brumm arose and in an address of withering, tragic eloquence sat down on the little man so violently as to effectually silence him. Mr. Brumm showed that all the Greenbackers know on the subject of Protection was learned at the feet of such Republicans as Hon. William D. Kelley, of Philadelphia.

The resolutions and platform as adopted are as follows:

Resolved, That as human life is of more value than money, we demand the enactment of laws making employers liable for accidents caused by neglect to provide adequate appliances for safety from machinery and fire, and such resolutions should provide that the responsibility of the employer to his help should be similar to that of common carriers of passengers to their patrons.

That we recommend legislation abolishing a tax qualification for voters.

Resolved, That we are in favor of legislation making local federal office holders elective directly by the people of their districts.

Resolved, That in our great American Commoner, Benj. F. Butler, his record in the field, his business relations, his professional life, his services to his Commonwealth and the Nation, we recognize the foremost man of his time, and pledge ourselves to lend every energy to secure his election to the Presidency.

That we demand the passage and enforcement of laws, State and National, reducing the hours of labor, that the laborer shall receive his just share of the benefits accruing from the use of labor saving machinery.

Resolved, That we demand the abolition of contract labor in the penal and reformatory institutions of the State.

PLATFORM.

The committee to whom was referred the preparation of resolutions to be submitted to the convention, respectfully report:

We demand, inasmuch as the continual decrease of the currency, while the population and business necessities have increased, has precipitated another panic, that the volume of money should be at least doubled, and the volume of currency be increased to meet the business demands of the country.

We demand the passage of an act of Congress prohibiting the importation of foreign labor under contract.

We declare the true American policy to be protection to home industry and labor.

We demand that the conspiracy laws of this State be further amended so as to make combinations of capitalists to regulate the price of labor or its products illegal, with adequate penalties, and recommend for this purpose the passage of the act presented to our Legislature at its last session by the Patrons of Husbandry.

We are in favor of equal rights, equal powers, equal burdens, and equal privileges to all, under the law.

A fusion resolution was introduced and provoked long and angry debate, a large number of the delegates being opposed to it, Mr. Frank Quick, a delegate from Susquehanna county, although one of the gentlemen placed on the fusion committee, was and is now strongly opposed to it, and the party will find that although the resolution was adopted by the convention, its provisions will be difficult to carry out. In the debate on the fusion resolution, Congressman Brumm opposed it with his usual eloquence. In view of the strong arguments brought up against it by this gentleman it is surprising that the resolution was adopted. That our readers can judge of the resolution for themselves, we give it as follows:

That Dr. Thomas St. Clair, Wesley Chambers, Geo. P. Armstrong, J. S. May, James W. Breen, Frank Quick, William Wilhelm and the chairman of the State Committee be and are hereby appointed a committee to meet a committee of any other political party duly accredited, to frame a joint electoral ticket, with such other party, containing the names from each ticket as they have been selected by our and their conventions, and in such proportions as to numbers as shall be satisfactory to the said committee, not less than fifteen, so as the better to secure a proportional part of the electoral vote of our State for our candidate; and wherever practicable congressmen shall be included on such combination; and that the committee be instructed not to make any combination for a less number than one half of the electoral vote.

WM. WILHELM, Chairman.
CHARLES S. KEYSER,
H. M. CLOSE,
THOS. A. ARMSTRONG.

The district electoral ticket as chosen by the convention is as follows:

1. Henry Reed,
2. Chas. S. Keyser,
3. Thomas Phillips,
4. Samuel H. Brown,
5. Gerald A. Miller,
6. ——,
7. Robert K. Tomlinson,
8. N. R. Wamsher,
9. James D. Fyott,
10. William Jones,
11. V. A. Lotier,
12. ——,
13. Philip A. Mohan,
14. Simeon E. Brownewelle,
15. George A. Webb,
16. Jonathan Rogers,
17. Jacob Trefts,
18. David H. Fisher,
19. ——,
20. Walter S. Service,
21. Wm. B. Fuller,
22. Andrew Patterson,
23. James Shipman,
24. Z. T. Allen,
25. Dr. Thomas St. Clair,
26. E. D. Wheeler,
27. T. L. Dewoody.

The convention remained in session until 11 o'clock p. m. The delegates were gathered inside the bar while the court room was crowded with members of the Democratic and Republican parties. Each vehement speech was applauded by the audience as the sentiments seemed to favor either the Democrats or Republicans. Most of the delegates seemed to be extremely anxious to ventilate their individual opinions and the audience considered the proceedings rich and entertaining in the extreme.

—The venerable Mrs. Norman of this place, departed on Wednesday to visit her son, Rev. Mr. Norman, who is a prominent clergyman of the P. E. church, located near Pittsburg. The aged parents of the talented young minister are proud of their son, and we hope Mrs. N. will thoroughly enjoy her visit.

The Most Miraculous Escape of the Season.

On Friday, September 26, near the hour of noon, there was a tremendous explosion caused by one of the blasts at the lime kiln of Alexander & Co. The rocks were hurled towards all the points of the compass, but one huge rock weighing 30 pounds, conceived the brilliant idea of carving out a new path for itself and was hurled away in the direction of August Seneca's house 200 yards distant. Now, a big rock hurled through space is about as bad as a cyclone, and although this rock was humble enough to go directly toward the kitchen instead of the best room of the dwelling, nevertheless it was terribly destructive in its effect. The family were gathered around the table discussing the noon-day meal. The rock didn't knock at the door, but tore with irresistible force through the window sash. It struck the kitchen stove and broke that strong, substantial article of furniture into small pieces, scattering pots, pans and kettles in all directions. The concussion shook the dwelling and knocked over the dishes on the table. A carving knife lying in the path of the stone (no one knows just where) shot across the table, between the members of the family who surrounded it and through an open doorway, into a front room. As may be imagined, the family were wonderfully frightened, but not one of them was injured. It is a marvel that they were not maimed or killed. We understand that Mr. Alexander, the owner of the lime kiln, has made good all damages, and it is the earnest wish of all that flying stones will conduct themselves in a less destructive manner in the future.

—Tuesday evening, September 30, a most delightful event occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Landis in this place, it being the marriage of their daughter, Miss Celia L. Landis, to Mr. Wm. P. Blackburne, a popular young gentleman from the Quaker City. Rev. Wm. Laurie, the pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated. The ceremony was solemnized in the presence of about twenty persons, principally relatives and friends of the contracting parties. A very elegant collation was spread. The happy bride and groom took the 8.55 p. m. express east for Philadelphia, the home of the groom. That they might avoid the usual excitement at the depot, the train stopped for them near Mr. Landis' residence. An extended wedding journey is impossible at this time because of business engagements which are awaiting Mr. Blackburne on his return to Philadelphia, and then Philadelphia is just now the most interesting city in the Union. The presents received, although not numerous, were rich and costly. The bride is one of Bellefonte's fairest and most highly esteemed young ladies and her parents and friends part with her with the greatest regret, and yet with the most earnest wishes for her happiness. Mr Blackburne, the groom, has spent much time in Bellefonte the past summer and has cultivated quite a large acquaintance. His friends here wish him unbounded happiness and success, and will take much solicitation in his welfare because of the jewel that has been entrusted to his care.

A Base Ball Club Disbands.

From the Lock Haven Express

The Lock Haven base ball association has concluded to disband the club for this season on account of want of sufficient patronage to pay the necessary expenses. The imported players have been paid up in full and will leave in a day or two for their homes. The team has shown itself to be an exceedingly strong one and the players one and all gentlemen in every sense of the word, winning many friends and admirers. There is not a drinking man in the club. It is more than probable that a strictly home team will be organized for the remainder of the season. The association expects next year to place in the field one of the strongest clubs in the interior of the State.

—Hurrah! for J. V. Thomas, Esq., ex-chairman of the Greenback party of Centre. When asked the other day if he expected to participate in the Greenback convention, he replied: "No, I consider Protection more important than Greenbacks this year."

—John Monroe, stepfather of Mr. William Mills, the barber, died on Monday evening of last week, and buried on Wednesday afternoon. He was about 60 years of age and his disease was dropsy.

—The expenses of keeping the poor people of the borough of Bellefonte for the month of September, 1884, amount to $119. This includes fuel, clothing and provision.

J. M. KEICHLINE, O. P.

—Sheriff Dunkle and his fair bride returned on Wednesday from their wedding tour.

—Mrs. S. T. Gibbs, of Milesburg, is the owner of a remarkable book. It is a German Bible printed in Luneburg, Germany, in the year 1633, and consequently 251 years old. It is an heirloom in her family and is highly prized. Mrs. Gibbs is a grandchild of Count Karl Stenger Trcziyulny, the Polish nobleman, whose daughter Miss Sarah Trcziyulny, recently died in this place. The statement that Mr. Petriken gave Count Trcziyulny the name of Charles is a mistake, as his own Polish name was Karl, which is the same. Count Karl Trcziyulny was not a remote heir to the crown of Poland, but a near heir, his mother being a sister of Stanislaus Pontawiska, who was then the king, which would make Karl the king's nephew. There are other heirlooms in the possession of descendants of the Count, in which are memoranda of importance that will throw much light on the Count's early history, which will be prepared for publication in the NEWS at an early day.

—The workmen employed in digging away the rock at the site of James Harris' building last week came to an opening sufficiently large to enter. Mr. A. B. Steele and others entered this opening and walked along the passage leading into the hill a distance of at least 75 feet. Mr. Steele found a large number of bones of peculiar shape, some of which he is unable to identify as those of any known animal. The bones bear the indentation of teeth larger than those of a fox and it is Mr. Steele's belief that this was once the home of wolves and the bones were carried there by them. The "cave" extends from the opening a short distance to the left, then turns to the right and then descends slightly into the earth, which precludes the idea that the bones have been carried in by water.

Leaves in the History of Count Trcziyulny.

In the family Bible which we previously referred to in the possession of Mrs. S. T. Gibbs, of Milesburg, are found complete records of the births of Count Trcziyulny and all his family. The book bears date the 25th of March, 1633. It descended from the Count to Henry P. Stegner Trcziyulny, and then to Mrs. Gibbs, Henry Trcziyulny's daughter. We quote from the record, as follows:

Karl Stegner Trcziyulny, born on the 11th of December, 1767, at 3 o'clock in the morning. He was married in January, 1800, to Katherine Dorsseynomhn. The said Katharine Dorsseynomhn, his wife, was born on the 26th of April, 1771, between 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning. Her children were as follows: Henry P. Stegner Trcziyulny, born August 28, 1800, between 12 and 1 m.; Sophia Stegner Trcziyulni, born March 20, 1802, between 11 and 12 p. m.; Karl (Charles) Stegner Trcziyulny, born March 11, 1804, between 1 and 2 p. m.; Sarah D. Stegner Trcziyulny, born March 30, 1806, between 5 and 6 a. m.; Hyacinthe Stegner Trcziyulny, born Aug. 6, 1808, between 9 and 10 a. m.; Elizabeth C. Stegner Trcziyulny, born March 2, 1812, between 9 and 10 a. m.; Joseph Stegner Trcziyulny, born Jan. 10, 1815, between 4 and 5 p. m.; Catharine Stegner Trcziyulny, born April 24, 1819, betwen 9 and 10 a. m.; Frances Mary Trcziyulny, born July 30, 1823, between 5 and 7 a. m.

The old Bible contains on its lids the following: "Jabunah Plertrey, her Book, Jan. 7, 1752," also "George Dentzel."

It was an error that Wm. Petriken, Esq., gave Charles Stegner Trcziyulny his given name, for in the year 1795 in the city of Philadelphia, "Charles (Karl) Stegner Trcziyulny, trader, son of Joseph Trcziyulny, officer of troops of Jaor-lik of the Province of Ukraine in Poland, where he was born," took the oath of allegiance to the United States of America. The certificate of Charles Stegner Trcziyulny shows that he renounced his title of nobility and allegiance to Gustavus Stanislaus Ponoitowiski, King of Poland, to whom he was a subject. He was related to Ponoitowiski by birth or marriage, and when he went to England he gave to the Mayor of the town and borough of Deal, in the county of Pont, certificates "that Charles Baron Trcziyulny of Wietmznwmsane, and Hyacinthe Trcziyulny, from Wallachi, in the Ukraine on the province of Turkey, did deliver to said Mayor their names, rank, &c., on the twentieth day of Jan., 1793." Hyacinthe Trcziyulny died in Philadelphia when the yellow fever raged as an epidemic.

There are numerous interesting relics of by-gone days in the possession of those who have received them as legacies. Fannie Brenner who lived with Sarah D. Stegner Trcziyulny from the the time the former was five days old, has a watch inlaid with precious stones, which belonged to the Count. The watch was made in Paris. On the back is a large blue stone with a knight and lady engraved in colors thereon. The watch is open face with a high oval crystal. Joseph Brenner has a diamond button which belonged to the Count. The silver knee buckles and shoe buckles worn by the Count were melted and made into spoons, of which Fannie Brenner has eight teaspoons, a sugar spoon and a table spoon and Mrs. Gibbs has one table spoon and a teaspoon. William Brenner, a brother of Fannie, who also lived with Sarah Trcziyulny, has a wampum belt and an infant moccasin which were given by an Indian chief to Charles Stegner Trcziyulny for his first born, who proved to be Henry P. Stegner Trcziyulny, who first saw the light in Philipsburg in the year 1800.

The Count was an expert surveyor and has some excellently executed maps of portions of Europe, which were made in the year 1780.

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the bean bake and camp fire to be held under the auspices of John W. Geary Post, G. A. R., in Philipsburg, on the 16th of October. The bean bake will be held from 5 until 8 o'clock p. m. and the camp fire from 8 to 10 o'clock. Among the prominent members of the G. A. R. who have been invited and are expected to be present we notice the names of Dept. Com. F. H. Dyer, A. A. Gen'l Thomas J. Stewart, Med. Director William D. Hall, Col. D. F. Fortney, Col. D. H. The chairman of the committee on arrangements is Thomas J. Hubbard.

—The motion for a new trial for Dr. Louis U. Beach, of Altoona, was denied by Judge Dean on Wednesday and the murderer was sentenced to be hanged.

Those Presbyterians and Schismatics of Milroy.

EDITOR DAILY NEWS: An article in a late issue of your paper relating to the dedication of a new church in Siglerville, Pa., seems to require some comment and a statement of the facts of a matter referred to therein, to avoid erroneous conclusions which might be drawn therefrom.

The last paragraph of the article referred to is as follows: "They (the people) feel profoundly that while it may be law, it is not justice that church property should be held by a small minority, a minority perhaps which gave little or nothing to secure the property, simply because this minority submits to ecclesiastical control and supervision."

This paragraph clearly refers to the property of the Milroy Presbyterian congregation, some of whom have been led astray into a new church organization, without any ecclesiastical connection whatever, have built for themselves a house of worship, and yet claim an equitable right to control the property they have abandoned. This property is now held, as it always has been, by the trustees of the congregation in strict conformity to the terms of their trust, for the use, not of any part, but of all the congregation whenever they choose to use it; and not only law, but the common sense of justice and right, as crystalized in the common law and in the decisions of courts, both of law and equity, demands the strict administration of all trusts, whether of church or other property. So "profoundly" have jurists felt the justice and necessity of this course that there is no point on which courts are more strict than on this matter of the enforcement of trusts.

The implication that the "church property" is held by a small minority, a minority perhaps which gave little or nothing to secure the property, simply because this minority submits to ecclesiastical control and supervision, is not in accordance with the facts.

The subscription papers for the purchase and repair of the parsonage belonging to this congregation, are still in existence, and a careful examination of them shows that the bulk of the money raised for this purpose was contributed by those who "submit to the ecclesiastical control and supervision" of the Presbytery; or, to be more precise, of the whole amount thus contributed, in all $3,274.40, $1,833.97 was subscribed and paid by those who are now or whose representative are Presbyterian; $1,142.16 by those who, or whose representative now adhere to Mr. White, and the balance, $298.97, by those who have died or removed and have left no representatives, or whose affiliations are unknown.

If the original subscriptions to the building and repair of the two churches of the congregation are still in existence, it is confidently believed that that will show that the money for these purposes was contributed in about the same proportions.

The last clause of the paragraph referred to suggests the question whether those who do not "submit to ecclesiastical control or supervision" are not themselves guilty of the sin of schism so justly and rigorously denounced by their leader.

MILROY, Oct. 1, 1884. M. R.

—The Democratic Congressional conference which was in session in St. Mary's on Wednesday adjourned to meet in Lewisburg Friday. The judicial conference balloted a few times in Huntingdon, but became weary of the continuous 3 to 3 and adjourned to try a few ballots in Bellefonte yesterday, where we hope a drink of spring water served up by John Anderson will lead them to a decision in favor of somebody. How would it do for these judicial aspirants to compromise? Let them both run, Hoy occupying the bench, if elected, one term of court and Bailey the next, and so on during their judicial term. This will give the people a fair opportunity to agree in regard to respective judicial abilities.

—Affairs at State College are moving along smoothly and pleasantly, about the same number of students being present this year that attended last year.

The Winning Candidate for Congress.

MY DEAR MR. EDITOR: This is the autumn of the year; it is a unique period in the cycle of time. The grass is becoming verdant again under recent precipitations of moisture and Belva Lockwood, the queenly Presidential candidate, needs support. Something whispers in my left ear and creeps in chilling coolness down my spinal column and opens its mouth and says: "Shall I be still while all nature thus doth luxuriate and woman to her lord and master's estate doth aspire?" I am the man that the Watchman mentioned for President, but since that journal has left me and taken up the failing fortunes of that "simply horrible" Cleveland, I repudiate it entirely and have concluded to immolate myself on the altar of the Twentieth Congressional district and present my name as a candidate for the National house of Representatives, subject to the decision of the "dear people." Now, Mr. Editor, if you will give me your support I will say that your paper is the best in Pennsylvania and will promise to guard the interests of my constituents with jealous care. I have a platform which is wide and strong, extending from the Twentieth district to Washington. I promise, if elected, to work with the sole object of securing a second nomination. I am thoroughly familiar with National legislation and will at once take an advanced and commanding position. I will early in the day introduce a bill to provide for the construction of railroads, giving all the cities and towns in the district the most modern railroad facilities and will endeavor to have at least one public building erected in each county in my district. Of course, it will be my object to have all the canals and creeks in the six counties opened to inland navigation by the largest ocean steamers. Other important measures will suggest themselves as they arise, but one very important measure, is that, in the event of Mrs. Lockwood's election, I will seek to woo and win her and thus become President. All who are in favor of these principles, are requested to vote for

JOHN SMITH

—The "racket" on Jail hill on Wednesday night between 9 and 10 o'clock was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Sheriff Dunkle. The Calithumpians opened the concert and rendered a variety of their choicest selections, charming the occupants of the mansion to such an extent that they fled to the tower. The noisy visitors became so bold that they entered the halls and office of the mansion and seemed about as anxious to look at the Sheriff as our Buckeye neighbors are to gaze at the Plumed Knight. At length, the Sheriff sent word that if his intruding guests would please retire in good order he would appear, and we presume he fulfilled his promise and satisfied his admirers. Then the Curtin Band appeared upon the scene and endeavored to rival the famous Weccacoe Band in the surpassing excellence of their serenade. The Sheriff murmured, "Ah, this is more electrical than the exhibition in Philadelphia; pass me my pocket-book." The silence of midnight caused the music to cease, but the clarionet, manipulated by Mr. Beck, murmured sweet notes at an early hour this morning. The bride and groom cannot complain that their home-coming was "unnoticed and unsung."

Work on the Beech Creek Railroad.

One hundred men are now busy putting the iron work up on the long high bridge across the Moshannon, near Peale, where it first enters Clearfield county, and the want of which has greatly retarded the laying of rails on this side of the creek. It is further stated that the Vanderbilt interest has purchased the Pardee or Hawk run branch road, a private concern, heretofore operated by the Pennsylvania, and have a construction train on it, and from this branch, in connection with the Morrisdale branch of the Pennsylvania, are now laying rails on the Philipsburg extension, bringing the iron for the purpose over the Pennsylvania system, and that another construction train is to be put to work next week, via of the same branch, when rail laying will be pushed both ways as fast as possible so that trains may be running the entire distance, from Philipsburg to the eastern cities by November, and by the closing in of winter a greater portion of the main track, up the Clearfield creek, will have the rails on it, perhaps to Ansonville.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

—The Evangelical, congregation at Millhiem are purchasing a $350 clock for the tower of their church. They evidently intend to have a high old time down there, both in altitude and price.

Death of Mr. Joseph Baker.

The announcement of the death of the venerable and respected Joseph Baker, Esq., of Lemont, will be the source of universal regret. He expired at his home in Lemont on Thursday morning at 4 o'clock, of heart disease. Mr. Baker was about 80 years of age and we believe was a life-long resident of this county, being known to about every citizen in the county and many throughout the State. He resided on one of the finest farms in this part of the State and perhaps was as successful in the cultivation of fruit as any one whom we could name. He usually took the premiums for fine fruit at the county fairs.

Mr. Baker married a Miss Coble, who preceded him to the eternal home several years ago. He leaves two sons and two daughters. A brother, 'Squire Jacob Baker, lived for a long time in Howard, this county, where he served for many years as a justice of the peace, but during the past five or six years Jacob has made his home with his children in Iowa. Joseph was a devoted Christian, being connected with the Evangelical church. The funeral took place at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and was very large.

—We had the pleasure the other day of a little chat with those two extremely pleasant people, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sands, and while thus engaged had the pleasure of admiring two very beautiful quilts, upon which Mrs. Sands had devoted much labor and ingenuity. They are marvels of taste and elegance and are intended for Patty Lane and James Lane, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Lane. The one which Patty Lane will become the owner of is certainly the most lovely creation of beauty and taste that we ever saw or that the poet ever dreamed of. Of numberless bits of rare silk and satin, harmonizing in color, here and there can be seen a flower, butterfly, bird, etc., all with bright plumage and graceful outline, and one can almost imagine he hears the carols of the feathered songsters or can inhale the fragrance of the bright flowers. The initials "P. L." are embroidered in the centre. The other quilt is also all of silk with the initials "J. L." in the centre, and is very beautiful, but "Patty's quilt" takes our reportorial eye exactly, and we imagine the sweetest dreams await the one who sleeps under it.

The "Watchman" Humbugged.

Some one has evidently been talking nonsense to the knowing editor of the Democratic Watchman about our townsman, James Milliken, Esq., as to his position in this political campaign. Mr. Milliken is not only very heartily for Mr. Blaine, but from the hour of his nomination to the present time has taken an active part in Mr. Blaine's behalf. He spoke at the ratification meeting held here endorsing Mr. Blaine and has been speech-making in other States in his behalf. We have Mr. Milliken's authority for stating that at no moment from the first hour of the existence of the Republican party has he ever failed to do his whole duty, both in time and money, and the Watchman's feeble intimation that he could for a moment entertain Cleveland as a candidate is simply silly in the extreme. The Watchman should be more careful from whom it obtains its information, lest it may be accused by right-thinking people of deliberate lying.

—The Methodist congregation are making arrangements to erect a parsonage. Indeed, the arrangements are completed and active operations are already in progress. A building lot, located west of Mr. Jenkins' property on Linn street and extending from Linn to Lamb street, has been purchased. The residence will be of brick, about 38 feet square, with a bay window, and well finished inside and outside. Mr. Morris Cowdrick has the contract for the building which will be finished by Spring. It will be the most commodious and comfortable church parsonage in Bellefonte and an ornament to the street on which it is located.

—The Millheim Journal calls the attention of its reader to the fact that the "American people of this generation live better than their fathers did," and illustrates by saying that tropical fruits (bananas, oranges, etc.,) which were former luxuries, are now within the reach of all. We wonder how Mr. Bumiller can consistently publish that fact and then advocate the election of Cleveland and Hendricks, whose pictures float at the Journal's mast-head, and instruct the readers of his paper to vote for them. Those gentlemen and the party they represent will do what they can to take away the advantages which a Republican policy has secured for the people.

—The Newton Hamilton Watchman has recently espoused the cause of Blaine and Logan.

Personal Pencilings.

When Mr. John I. Thompson entered the Greenback convention he was loudly applauded.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hicks, of Linn street, are entertaining Miss Mary Scarlett, of Chester county.

Mrs. Miller, a resident of Canton, Ohio, is the guest of her friend, Miss Ella Rhone, daughter of Dr. Rhone.

Mr. H. G. Elder is the name of the next Prothonotary of Centre county. See that his name is printed on the ticket you vote.

The Right Reverend Mark Antony DeWolfe Howe visited the P. E. church in Altoona on Sunday to administer confirmation.

Mr. Israel Sternberg left Monday morning for Renovo, where he will be engaged in the large mercantile establishment owned by Mr. James Murphy.

Mr. Baker, the electrician, deperted for Philadelphia on Monday for the purpose of inspecting the Electrical Exhibition and other Quaker City attractions.

Mr. James Leech, of Boalsburg, is ill with typhoid fever, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph Calvert, of Altoona, arrived a few days ago to be with him during his illness.

Miss Ammerman, of Tyrone, has charge of the reception room of Mr. Finkbinder's gallery. She is an artist of ability and gives complete satisfaction to Mr. F. and all his customers.

Miss Orwig, who we recently announced as a guest at the home of Mr. Rishel, in Centre Hall, is a resident of Cleveland, Ohio, and not of Union county, as was then stated. She has not yet had the pleasure even of seeing Union county.

Mr. James Williams, the capable bookkeeper for Jas. Harris & Co., departed for Jersey Shore at 10 a. m. Friday. There is considerable mystery about Mr. W's visit which we will take pleasure in explaining to our readers as soon as the denouement occurs.

Miss Rumberger and Miss Brugger, two young ladies of Unionville, were in town on Monday of last week, departing on the 5 o'clock train. They were good enough to pay their respects, while in Bellefonte, to the NEWS office, and we shall remember their call with pleasure.

Mr. Frank Gilbart, the affable and dignified manager of the Singer machine agency on Allegheny street, returned on Wednesday morning from a four weeks visit among friends in London, Canada. His prolonged recreation was thoroughly enjoyable. It is perhaps worthy of note in this connection that he considers the Canadian ladies the most beautiful in the world.

Miss Gertie Else, the accomplished daughter of Prof. B. B. Else, formerly of the firm of Else & Bro. of Milesburg, and now a resident of Florida, departed from Milesburg on the 10 o'clock train on Wednesday for Milton where she will visit friends. After leaving Milton she will visit in Lock Haven and Williamsport and then return again to Milesburg. Still later she expects to join her parents in Florida, and as she is an only child she will be received in the land of perpetual flowers with that warmth of affection which can only be shown under such circumstances. Doubtless the fatted calf will be killed, although Miss Gertie is not in any sense a prodigal. But if a calf is lacking, perhaps a mule will be substituted. Anyway, there will be great rejoicing.

Comrade Rimer Improving.

FAIRMOUNT SPRINGS, Penn'a., September 30, 1884.

EDITOR DAILY NEWS: Comrade G. W. Rimer, who was hurt at Bellefonte by a fall, causing a concussion of the spinal column, is slowly recovering so that for the past few days he has sat up some for a few minutes at a time and has hopes of an entire recovery ere long. Comrade Rimer speaks of Bellefonte and its people in very glowing terms, and expects to go back on a visit as soon as he can travel.

Please give this space in your local columns and oblige his friends.
